Queen Juliana Receives Warm Welcome on Anniversary Visit

Auditorium Filled for Ceremonies

Thousands Brave Rain Saturday for Look at Royal Visitor Here From Holland

Highly Impressed

Her Majesty Expresses Felicitations on City's Tercentennary

"We feel that we belong to each other and that The Netherlands and America will be good friends, whatever happens," Queen Juliana told approximately 2,000 people in the municipal auditorium Saturday afternoon.

Congratulating the people of Kingston on its 300th birthday, the low-voiced Queen said that it was very gratifying to her to "realize everything we have in common and that you have kept up the same things that we have kept up."

The Queen received a warm welcome as she entered the auditorium, some 40 minutes late, through the ranks of a contingent of National Guardsmen, their green helmets glittering in a light rain.

Thousands of raincoated men, women and children lined the streets over which the Queen and her party were to ride. An all-night rain, which brought an inch and a half of rainfall down on Kingston by 8 a. m., and turned to a drizzle by noon, forced the official reception indoors, but did not interfere with the Queen's placing of a floral wreath at the statue of Peter Stuyvesant at Academy Green or with her visit to the Old First Dutch Church.

Saluted by Guards

As the Queen's party approached, riding in three black Cadillac limousines, a cry went up from the audience near the entrance. The bright yellow gloves of the guards snapped to salute, and color guards, furnished by American Legion Post 150, the Marine Corps League and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, came smartly to attention. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who had been on the rostrum since 2 p. m., smiled a warm greeting as she came forward across the stage toward Juliana, as the Queen mounted the steps behind a bank of golden daffodils.

The Queen, whose pale blue-grey suit was somewhat wrinkled from the effects of weather and travel, stood motionlessly near the front of the stage as the strains of the solemn Netherlands national anthem rang through the silent auditorium. The Dutch anthem was followed by the Star Spangled Banner, both rendered by the Kingston High School band.

Child Presents Flowers

Gracious Dr. Milton J. Hoffman, who occupies the chair of history at New Brunswick Theological Seminary, New Brunswick, N. J., and has been knighted by the Dutch government as Knight of Orange-Nassau, introduced charming Pamela Dale Dykstra, seven-year-old daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Dean Dykstra, to the Queen. The little miss, with a completely winning smile, presented Her Majesty with a bouquet of red roses, Juliana rising to receive them and shaking hands with an enraptured Pamela.

Dr. Hoffman then introduced Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk to the Queen. Speaking, he said, as the "Mayor of this city, I would bespeak the mind of our citizens and tell you that Kings-ton today . . . is a Queens-town!" Newkirk welcomed Her Majesty, he declared, "with something of the affection and pride that a son would have as he welcomes his mother to his household for the first time."

Pays Tribute to Dutch

He paid tribute to the Dutch people, "the first to settle here," saying that the "Dutch have been and always will be good citizens of the highest type . . ." He said that when "we think of your country we think of the magnificent contribution of your people who have always been mindful of the dignity and worth of the individual. We think of the courage of a people who have turned back the sea. We think of the industry and diligence of a people who have made a great nation from their little land. And we are

Her Majesty's Smile Captivates All

The thousands of spectators in the municipal auditorium, on the rain-drenched city streets, and in cars parked along the route traveled by Her Majesty, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, will long remember the lovely, royal personage whose smile reflects the beauty of soul and character she possesses. Although the weather-man did his best, he could not dampen the ardor with which the residents of the city and county greeted their royal visitor. (Freeman photo).

Gain Is Reported In Bridge Travel Over 1951 Figure

10,985 Increase Is Noted in Vehicles on Three Spans; One Bridge Shows Decrease

Travel over the three Hudson river bridges under control of the New York State Bridge Authority during March this year showed a gain of 10,985 vehicles over March 1951, the authority reported today.

The three bridges clocked 382,987 vehicles last month against 372,002 in March 1951, a percentage gain of 2.95, and for the first time in recent years one of the bridges showed a loss.

The Rip Van Winkle Bridge clocked 73,382 last month and

Strike Is Scheduled for Tuesday Night of 650,000 Men in Industry

New York, April 7 (AP)—A government mediator pressed anew today for a settlement of the steel wage dispute but his efforts failed to ease the threat of a strike tomorrow midnight.

Nathan P. Feinsinger, chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board, met with top union officials in a last-ditch attempt to prevent a walkout by 650,000 members of the CIO United Steel Workers.

In a brief statement, Feinsinger announced he had met briefly with industry leaders late last night and expects to have "either separate or joint conferences throughout today."

While the search was on for a peace formula, furnaces in the industry's great mills were being cooled in preparation for a shutdown.

Dewey Signs Insurance Bill For State Teen-Age Drivers

Albany, N. Y., April 7 (AP)—All young drivers of automobiles in New York state must carry liability insurance after July 1.

Present law requires coverage only for all car owners under 21.

Governor Dewey signed a bill yesterday that was designed to (1) eliminate irresponsible teenagers from the highways or, (2) force them to provide adequate liability protection to the public.

The new law will require that all persons under 21 have $10,000 coverage for injury to one person, $20,000 for injuries to more than one and $5,000 for property damage.

Either the young driver or the owner of the car he drives may buy the required insurance. The cost of the "10-20 and 5" coverage ranged from about $210 a year in New York city to about $78 in rural areas.

Dewey signed a bill last week doubling the amount of insurance that car owners under 21 must carry, from $5,000-$10,000 to $10,000-$20,000. The bill signed yesterday, however, affects all

Strike Is Three-Way Snarl Now

Communications Tieup Flares Across U. S. but Service Said to Be Normal

Mediators Fail

All-Night Session Is Unproductive Report Says

New York, April 7 (AP)—A two-pronged communications strike flared across the country today, but an American Telephone and Telegraph spokesman said "most service is normal."

The CIO walkouts hit the Western Electric Company, installation and maintenance subsidiary of the Bell System in 43 states, and the telephone system itself in five states.

Coupled with a continuing AFL strike against the Western Union Telegraph System, the new walkouts made the communications snarl a three-way affair.

About 67,000 workers—16,000 of them employes of Western Electric and 51,000 of them telephone employes in Ohio, New Jersey, Michigan, northern California and Nevada—quit their jobs.

They are all members of the CIO Communications Workers of America. All-night mediation efforts had failed to bring agreement.

Although picket lines of the 43-state Western Electric crews would threaten telephone service generally, picketing was only sporadic so far.

In Fifth Day

In the Western Union strike, now in its fifth day, the company claimed today that service has been restored in 82 major cities of the 2,000 cities and towns where it has offices.

The union, the AFL Commercial Telegraphers, said the claim was company propaganda, and that "we have the country sewed up except for New York city."

Further mediation efforts were scheduled today, both for the telephone and Western Union phases of the strikes.

The A. T. & T. spokesman said that "all long distance calls throughout the country are going through," despite the walkouts of operators and others at Bell systems in the five states.

Some of the calls are moving only "slowly," he said, because "the boys with the thumbs" (supervisors not as skillful at the switchboard) have taken the place of regular operators.

Most Service Normal

"This slowing down," he added, "applies only to a few places and is not general by any means. Most service is normal."

Dial service, which takes care of a bulk of urban calls, is not threatened, barring equipment breakdowns.

Reports from throughout the country indicated that while most Western Electric workers were out, they had not yet attempted to picket telephone exchanges.

There was picketing of some Western Electric plants, however, and at telephone exchanges in the states where the operators themselves struck. WE plants in Watertown, Mass., and New Haven were shut down.

Wage disputes caused the communications labor troubles.

The Western Electric dispute appeared to be the most serious nationally. This company is a Bell subsidiary, and the union plans to picket telephone company offices.

Will Respect Lines

Ernest Weaver, a CWA district official in New York, said 300,000 union telephone workers in the 43 states were prepared to respect the Western Electric picket lines.

But the prospects were that pickets would not be posted at all offices at one time. This was the "hit and run" tactic used by the union in a 1950 strike.

In New York, three members of the CWA striking against Western Electric gave Telephone Company employes at one building leaflets telling them to "go to work today" but keep in touch "for latest strike information." However, there were CWA pickets at the company's headquarters building here.

A CWA official at Denver said men had been ordered out in Colorado, Wyoming, Arizona, Utah, Idaho, and at El Paso, Tex.

Say Power Not Cause Of Crash

Cargo Plane's Engines Were Functioning Normally According to Findings

Probe Continues

Experts Are Due Now in Solving of Mishap That Killed Five

New York, April 7 (AP)—Investigators said today that engines of the cargo plane which crashed into Jamaica, Queens, Saturday apparently were functioning normally.

"The evidence at the moment," said Edward E. Slattery, Jr., Civil Aeronautics Board spokesman, "is that apparently there was no power failure before the crash."

He said the probe is continuing and that other engine experts are en route here to make "double checks" of the remains of the twin-engine plane, whose flaming plunge killed five persons.

The dead included the pilot and co-pilot and three persons on the ground. A block-long strip of homes were burned or damaged.

Earlier, Slattery said the pilot had "apparently not followed instructions," after he missed a landing approach at Idlewild Airport, and was told to rise to 1,500 feet into an overcast, and circle left.

There was a 400-foot ceiling at the time.

The twin-engine C-46 crashed as it roared away from Idlewild Airport after missing in an attempt of landing in a morning rain and murky overcast.

Instructed to Climb

Slattery said the pilot, Capt. William B. Crockett, Jr., 27, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was "apparently staying under the overcast to come around for a landing" when he crashed.

The pilot had been instructed to climb before making a second landing approach, investigators said.

Six of the scores of persons injured in the crash remained in hospitals today.

The crash was the fifth such accident in the metropolitan area in less than four months.

Three crashes in Elizabeth, N. J., took a toll of 119 lives—11 of them on the ground — since Dec. 16. The Planes were using Newark (N. J.) Airport. Also, an airliner crashed into the East river off LaGuardia Field, Queens but all 36 aboard were rescued.

The plane which crashed Saturday was owned by U. S. Airlines, a cargo carrier.

Reviewed Reports

The National Air Transport Coordinating Committee met yesterday and said it had reviewed "preliminary reports" from groups investigating the crash. The committee, headed by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Air Lines, offered its cooperation to the CAB. The committee is composed of representatives of major airlines.

Slattery's statement on the plane's maneuvers Saturday followed a meeting of CAB officials yesterday at Idlewild Airport.

Nearly Three Inches Of Rain in Kingston

The storm which began about midnight Saturday dropped on Kingston and vicinity a total of nearly three inches of rain. Most of the rain fell on Saturday with but a trace on Sunday.

At the city engineer's weather station the city hall roof 2.95 inches of rain was recorded. In the town of Ulster the recording was slightly less, 2.50 inches.

Some Left Homeless

Talk With Stalin Produces Call to Discuss Problems

Bus Hearing Is Set for Tuesday

Court House Session Slated for 10:30 on Fairview, Wilbur Lines

At 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning the adjourned hearing on the permanent suspension of the Fairview-Lucas avenue and the Wilbur avenue bus lines in this city, will be convened by the public service commission. The hearing will be at the court house.

Following the presentment of statistics by the Kingston City Transportation Corporation last week, an adjournment was taken until April 8, for the purpose of cross examination and also to hear persons residing along the two bus lines who seek to have the bus service continued.

The transportation company has made an application to permanently discontinue service on the two lines.

This suspension is being vigorously opposed by the city officials and residents of the affected areas.

At the last hearing approximately 100 people from the areas were present, ready to testify to the need for continuance.

Indian Ambassador Says No Major Difficulty Too Big; West Is Silent

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY

Moscow, April 7 (AP)—A half-hour conversation between Prime Minister Stalin and India's ambassador to Moscow has produced a new call for the world's "top people" to meet in an attempt to settle major international problems.

"There is no outstanding problem now dividing the world which could not be settled with discussion and negotiation. * * * Every effort should be made to get the top people together," said the Indian ambassador, Sir Sarvapalli Radhakrishman, after his conversation Saturday night with Stalin.

Stalin's interview with the Indian diplomat was viewed here as another in a series of important Soviet moves apparently aimed at fostering the hope that the divided world can settle its differences peaceably.

Other Red Moves

The Communist moves in this direction include:

People Are Driven Out Of Homes

Rising Waters Damage Highways and Bridges but No Loss of Life Is Reported

Many to Rescue

Firemen, City Workers Volunteer in Moving Families' Goods

For the second consecutive year the Esopus creek went on a spring rampage, flooding highways, damaging bridges and driving numerous people from their homes. There was no loss of life.

However the crest of the flood was reached Sunday afternoon and since then the waters have dropped. The crest came about four feet under the disastrous flood of March 31, 1951 when the entire Murphy street area was flooded and families driven from their homes.

Forewarned of the flood, families residing on the lowland areas began Saturday afternoon to prepare for the flood and consequently the damage was far less than in 1951.

Warnings Given

When the upper Esopus valley began to feel the effects of the heavy rain, state police, sheriff's office men and the Red Cross began to send out warnings and Ulster Hose Company No. 5, of the town of Ulster summoned its men through the Mutual Aid system at Central Fire station and crews were rushed to the Orlando street area north of Kingston and the evacuation of families was undertaken. When it was ascertained that the water would not reach the height of last year many families simply had the firemen carry furnishings to upper floors out of danger.

Men from Ulster Hose company were on constant duty from 2 p. m. Saturday until 8 a. m. today.

Chief Joseph Dyer reported that two families on Orlando street were evacuated and their furnishings moved out. A dozen other families moved to upper floors.

At the height of the flood Esopus street was flooded and it was necessary to use a boat to get to Orlando street. At one time there was three feet of water covering Esopus avenue. This was approximately three feet under the level of a year ago.

In the city of Kingston the Board of Public Works called out emergency crews and trucks stood by on Murphy street to take out furniture should there be need. Only two families were evacuated in the Murphy street area.

Route 28 Closed

During the height of the flood Route 28 was closed to traffic just beyond the Washington avenue bridge and also at the Sunset Theatre.

The Hurley mountain road was closed for a time to traffic at the Hurley bridge but Sunday afternoon the water began to drop and traffic down Route 28 was detoured over the Mountain road and over the Esopus creek bridge at Hurley and back to Route 209.

In the Phoenicia area the crest of the water did not reach the highway, although residents were prepared. Sand bags had been placed in Phoenicia village to prevent the Chichester stream from overflowing into the village but the stream halted at the bank and there was no damage.

The Esopus creek was reported by Corporal Ray Dunn to have fallen about 3½ feet at Phoenicia today.

The Big Indian temporary bridge over the creek from Big Indian leading to Oliverea, known as the upper bridge, was rendered useless when the embankment was washed away and the bridge damaged. Another bridge further up the Big Indian valley was washed out. There were few families residing beyond this point.

At Cold Brook the creek flooded the Onteora Trail to a depth of about two feet and shoulders of the highway were damaged. At Mt. Tremper the Trail was also flooded near the George Byron property and the Mt. Pleasant-Mt. Tremper road and flat were covered. About 150 feet of cement retaining wall erected last fall along the Sherman property was washed out after being undermined.

The water fills front and back yards in the neighborhood of Brabrant road, near the Washington avenue viaduct, but these youngsters must have their fun. ## Bus Hearing Is Set for Tuesday

Court House Session Slated for 10:30 on Fairview, Wilbur Lines

At 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning the adjourned hearing on the permanent suspension of the Fairview-Lucas avenue and the Wilbur avenue bus lines in this city, will be convened by the public service commission. The hearing will be at the court house.

Following the presentment of statistics by the Kingston City Transportation Corporation last week, an adjournment was taken until April 8, for the purpose of cross examination and also to hear persons residing along the two bus lines who seek to have the bus service continued.

The transportation company has made an application to permanently discontinue service on the two lines.

This suspension is being vigorously opposed by the city officials and residents of the affected areas.

At the last hearing approximately 100 people from the areas were present, ready to testify to the need for continuance.

Indian Ambassador Says No Major Difficulty Too Big; West Is Silent

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY

Moscow, April 7 (AP)—A half-hour conversation between Prime Minister Stalin and India's ambassador to Moscow has produced a new call for the world's "top people" to meet in an attempt to settle major international problems.

"There is no outstanding problem now dividing the world which could not be settled with discussion and negotiation. * * * Every effort should be made to get the top people together," said the Indian ambassador, Sir Sarvapalli Radhakrishman, after his conversation Saturday night with Stalin.

Stalin's interview with the Indian diplomat was viewed here as another in a series of important Soviet moves apparently aimed at fostering the hope that the divided world can settle its differences peaceably.

Other Red Moves

The Communist moves in this direction include:

1. Stalin's statement last week to a group of American newspaper editors and radio men that a third world war is no nearer than it was in 1949 or 1950 and

People Are Driven Out Of Homes

Rising Waters Damage Highways and Bridges but No Loss of Life Is Reported

Many to Rescue

Firemen, City Workers Volunteer in Moving Families' Goods

For the second consecutive year the Esopus creek went on a spring rampage, flooding highways, damaging bridges and driving numerous people from their homes. There was no loss of life.

However the crest of the flood was reached Sunday afternoon and since then the waters have dropped. The crest came about four feet under the disastrous flood of March 31, 1951 when the entire Murphy street area was flooded and families driven from their homes.

Forewarned of the flood, families residing on the lowland areas began Saturday afternoon to prepare for the flood and consequently the damage was far less than in 1951.

Warnings Given

When the upper Esopus valley began to feel the effects of the heavy rain, state police, sheriff's office men and the Red Cross began to send out warnings and Ulster Hose Company No. 5, of the town of Ulster summoned its men through the Mutual Aid system at Central Fire station and crews were rushed to the Orlando street area north of Kingston and the evacuation of families was undertaken. When it was ascertained that the water would not reach the height of last year many families simply had the firemen carry furnishings to upper floors out of danger.

Men from Ulster Hose company were on constant duty from 2 p. m. Saturday until 8 a. m. today.

Chief Joseph Dyer reported that two families on Orlando street were evacuated and their furnishings moved out. A dozen other families moved to upper floors.

At the height of the flood Esopus street was flooded and it was necessary to use a boat to get to Orlando street. At one time there was three feet of water covering Esopus avenue. This was approximately three feet under the level of a year ago.

In the city of Kingston the Board of Public Works called out emergency crews and trucks stood by on Murphy street to take out furniture should there be need. Only two families were evacuated in the Murphy street area.

Route 28 Closed

During the height of the flood Route 28 was closed to traffic just beyond the Washington avenue bridge and also at the Sunset Theatre.

The Hurley mountain road was closed for a time to traffic at the Hurley bridge but Sunday afternoon the water began to drop and traffic down Route 28 was detoured over the Mountain road and over the Esopus creek bridge at Hurley and back to Route 209.

In the Phoenicia area the crest of the water did not reach the highway, although residents were prepared. Sand bags had been placed in Phoenicia village to prevent the Chichester stream from overflowing into the village but the stream halted at the bank and there was no damage.

The Esopus creek was reported by Corporal Ray Dunn to have fallen about 3½ feet at Phoenicia today.

The Big Indian temporary bridge over the creek from Big Indian leading to Oliverea, known as the upper bridge, was rendered useless when the embankment was washed away and the bridge damaged. Another bridge further up the Big Indian valley was washed out. There were few families residing beyond this point.

At Cold Brook the creek flooded the Onteora Trail to a depth of about two feet and shoulders of the highway were damaged. At Mt. Tremper the Trail was also flooded near the George Byron property and the Mt. Pleasant-Mt. Tremper road and flat were covered. About 150 feet of cement retaining wall erected last fall along the Sherman property was washed out after being undermined.

Expresses Police Thanks for Help With Ceremonies

James P. Martin, acting secretary of the Kingston board of police commissioners, expressed his appreciation today for the cooperation received by the police department Saturday during the visit of Queen Juliana.

In a letter to The Freeman, Martin said that he wanted to thank Sheriff Cluett Schantz "for his fine spirit of cooperation in furnishing me with 11 of his men to help handle the traffic problems and other details in connection with the Queen's visit.

He said that he also wanted to thank Sherwood Davis, civil defense head, "for his cooperation in furnishing me with his chief of police, Chris Perry, and his assistant chief of police, Michael Corcoran, and the other seven men who worked with them. They did a fine job in helping to clear the streets of traffic and later in handling traffic at street intersections to which I assigned them. Rain or no rain they did their work well and are to be congratulated.

Martin expressed appreciation to the public "for their fine spirit of cooperation in keeping their automobiles out of the areas which had been restricted for parking and in this manner made our work much simpler. There were many detours but the public did not find fault but did as requested by our officers."

Martin also thanked The Freeman for its assistance in publishing information about parking and traffic regulations for the ceremonies.

Dock Worker Slain

New York, April 7 (AP)—A 43-year-old dock worker was slain last night by a bullet fired at close range behind his life ear. John M. Regan, on parole from Sing Sing prison, was shot down as he was about to enter a West 55th street apartment building with two containers of chow mein he had purchased at a restaurant. Police said hours of questioning had uncovered no motive for the shooting. A man who was parking his car told detectives he heard a shot and saw two men running toward Tenth avenue. An unidentified boy ran to a radio police car and reported the shooting.

May Have Answer

New York, April 7 (AP)—A Great Neck, N. Y., industrial designer thinks he has the answer to the fire that accompanies plane crashes such as the one in Jamaica, Queens, Saturday morning. He would break down airplane fuel into two non-explosive components, to be combined for use in a small metering device. This, says Nelson J. Waterbury, of Great Neck, would eliminate, at least, the danger of a fuel explosion and the spread of burning gasoline.

Appeal Is Made By Safety Group To Area Drivers

"It's smart to be safe—to stay safe you have to stay smart! That's good advice for the parents and children here in Ulster county. Part of the way to stay smart in this business of safety is to be a little ahead of the game. Know the story behind accidents before they occur," Richard M. Kalish, president of the Ulster County Safety Council said today in urging every driver to think about the other fellow for a change. He also urged drivers to think about the school child on his way to or from school, the youngster playing beside the road, the young boy on the bicycle.

"We have a large problem with our pre-school and elementary children," Kalish stated today. "With them we have to expect anything. They are easily attracted to any object or person no matter where or what it is—they are very apt to dash in front of any moving car and not be aware of it at all. Children have no fear and are not aware of any potential danger in cars. They are noted for poor judgment and are apt to change their minds in the middle of crossing the street."

Must Stay Alert

"Most of us want to be alert and know what to expect . . . but with children you never know what to expect. Children cannot be adults. We as adults and parents must be responsible for their safety. As drivers forget worrying about whether or not you have the right of way and start thinking about giving consideration to children and other pedestrians. As parents teach your children to use playgrounds or safe play areas away from traffic hazards. Remember that the safety training you give your children will be completely successful only when you also obey the rules and safe practices. Know the safety rules you expect your children to follow and follow them yourself," he added.

"With spring upon us, the number of bicycles on the roads in Kingston and out in the county will increase one-hundred fold. When you are passing someone riding a bike keep your eyes on him until you are past him. Make sure that you and the bicycle have enough room. Each driver is not king of the road but must share it with other people. Bicycles too have rules they must follow. Traffic laws are bicycle laws too. In Kingston, according to city law, children over eleven must ride bicycles in the street and not on the sidewalks. This makes it doubly important for us to all do our parts in making Kingston and the county a safe place to live," the Safety Council president said.

"Don't take chances with someone else's life . . . it might be your own, or your child's. Take it easy . . . remember you were a kid once too," Kalish concluded.

Dewey to Observe Tests

Albany, N. Y., April 7 (AP)—Governor Dewey will fly west on April 18 to observe atomic tests to be staged on the desert near Las Vegas, Nev. Dewey, with other governors, was invited by Millard Caldwell, director of the U. S. Civil Defense Commission. Before leaving, the governor must act on approximately 500 of more than 1,000 measures approved by the 1952 Legislature. The deadline for his action is April 19.

Firemen Check Burners

Firemen received two calls for excessive oil in burners and one for a short circuit blaze over the weekend. The first oil burner call was to 189½ Elmendorf street in the apartment of Howard Hotaling at 1:07 p. m., Saturday. The other at 10:23 a. m., today was in the apartment of Mrs. Lena Wolven, 143 Greenkill avenue. The short in the electric wire was on a pole near 142 Hunter street shortly after 6:30 p. m., Saturday.

Talk With Stalin

that a meeting of the big power chiefs of state would be useful.

2. The International Economic Conference now underway here at which M. V. Nesterov, president of Russia's chamber of commerce, said Saturday that the Soviet Union is ready for a vast expansion of trade with all countries.

3. The Russian proposal nearly a month ago that the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union get together to negotiate a peace treaty with a United Germany.

The Indian ambassador talked with Stalin during a farewell call before leaving April 8 for India to become his country's vice president.

Have Frank Discussion

The Indian Embassy said Sir Sarvapalli and Stalin had a "very frank discussion on many of the issues which are now agitating the world."

"It would be unwise to bang the door against every approach and give up the task as impossible," said the ambassador after the talk, adding, "no effort is wasted. And every effort should be made to get the top people together."

Radhakrishman said Stalin looked "as usual" and was in a "good humor." He had had one previous interview with the prime minister, upon his arrival here in January, 1950.

Though there was no immediately official reaction in the western world to this latest suggestion for a top level conference, non-Communist observers generally have considered the other recent Soviet moves as propaganda designed to arouse false hopes of peaceful Communist intentions in the west and to undermine the western rearmament program.

Financial and Commercial

By RICHARD FISKE

New York, April 7 (AP)—Prices fell fractions to around two points on the stock market today in the face of widespread strikes and threats of strikes.

A walkout in the strategic steel industry, set for midnight tomorrow, was the major factor being discussed by traders.

Steel stocks, rail issues and motors were under pressure. Activity in the market generally was moderate.

Ultimatums Reported By Egypt to Britain

Cairo, Egypt, April 7 (AP) — Cairo newspapers reported a variety of ultimatums by Egypt's government to Britain today. A British embassy spokesman said the embassy had "no knowledge of anything in the nature of an ultimatum."

British Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson, meanwhile, conferred for an hour with Prime Minister Ahmed Naguib Hilaly Pasha and Foreign Minister Abdel Khalek Hassouna Pasha.

Stevenson said they continued their "exchange of views" on Egypt's demand for British withdrawal from the Suez Canal zone and for recognition of Egypt's claims to sovereignty over the million-square-mile Sudan. Britain so far has refused the demands.

Later, U. S. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery spent a few moments with Hilaly. Hassouna said the two continued their "exchange of views."

Strike Is Snarl

But no immediate picketing was reported.

In Nashville, Tenn., C. W. Gwin, state CWA director, said he may consider putting up picket lines later, but the strike was on.

Weaver made his statement shortly after talks for installation workers broke up. Later, the Western Electric sales personnel talks also ended in a deadlock. Both sides and federal negotiators said they would remain on hand in New York if a need for new talks becomes apparent.

The CWA met in all-night sessions with Telephone Company officials and mediators in Newark, N. J.; Cleveland, O.; Detroit, Mich.; and San Francisco.

In Newark and Detroit, negotiations continued past the 6 a. m. deadline although operators walked off their exchange jobs.

Federal mediators in Detroit said the company there raised its offer just before the strike deadline. The union said only that the new offer was "better." The Detroit talks then recessed until today.

The 35-year-old son of Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to the Court of St. James, made the announcement yesterday after conferring with Gov. Paul A. Dever, "favorite son" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Dever, who is expected to seek a third term, has said he would announce his political plans after Easter.

Woman Severely Hurt in Three-Car Crash at Highland

Miss Alida Ellen Sciarra, 30, of 238 East 116th street, New York, was injured in a three-car collision near Highland which occurred as she was attemping to tow another vehicle from a ditch at 3:15 a. m. Sunday, state police reported.

Miss Sciarra, who troopers said suffered a fractured ankle, possible skull fracture and other injuries, was taken to Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Troopers said she was driving an automobile which was towing another car from a ditch on Route 9W one mile south of the Highland traffic circle when an automobile driven by Robert Joseph Meyer, 31, of Poughkeepsie, struck the Sciarra car and forced it into the ditch car, which was driven by Stephen R. Meyer suffered the loss of a tooth, cuts and bruises, troopers reported. No arrest was made.

Expresses Police Thanks for Help With Ceremonies

James P. Martin, acting secretary of the Kingston board of police commissioners, expressed his appreciation today for the cooperation received by the police department Saturday during the visit of Queen Juliana.

In a letter to The Freeman, Martin said that he wanted to thank Sheriff Cluett Schantz "for his fine spirit of cooperation in furnishing me with 11 of his men to help handle the traffic problems and other details in connection with the Queen's visit.

He said that he also wanted to thank Sherwood Davis, civil defense head, "for his cooperation in furnishing me with his chief of police, Chris Perry, and his assistant chief of police, Michael Corcoran, and the other seven men who worked with them. They did a fine job in helping to clear the streets of traffic and later in handling traffic at street intersections to which I assigned them. Rain or no rain they did their work well and are to be congratulated.

Martin expressed appreciation to the public "for their fine spirit of cooperation in keeping their automobiles out of the areas which had been restricted for parking and in this manner made our work much simpler. There were many detours but the public did not find fault but did as requested by our officers."

Martin also thanked The Freeman for its assistance in publishing information about parking and traffic regulations for the ceremonies.

Dock Worker Slain

New York, April 7 (AP)—A 43-year-old dock worker was slain last night by a bullet fired at close range behind his life ear. John M. Regan, on parole from Sing Sing prison, was shot down as he was about to enter a West 55th street apartment building with two containers of chow mein he had purchased at a restaurant. Police said hours of questioning had uncovered no motive for the shooting. A man who was parking his car told detectives he heard a shot and saw two men running toward Tenth avenue. An unidentified boy ran to a radio police car and reported the shooting.

May Have Answer

New York, April 7 (AP)—A Great Neck, N. Y., industrial designer thinks he has the answer to the fire that accompanies plane crashes such as the one in Jamaica, Queens, Saturday morning. He would break down airplane fuel into two non-explosive components, to be combined for use in a small metering device. This, says Nelson J. Waterbury, of Great Neck, would eliminate, at least, the danger of a fuel explosion and the spread of burning gasoline.

Appeal Is Made By Safety Group To Area Drivers

"It's smart to be safe—to stay safe you have to stay smart! That's good advice for the parents and children here in Ulster county. Part of the way to stay smart in this business of safety is to be a little ahead of the game. Know the story behind accidents before they occur," Richard M. Kalish, president of the Ulster County Safety Council said today in urging every driver to think about the other fellow for a change. He also urged drivers to think about the school child on his way to or from school, the youngster playing beside the road, the young boy on the bicycle.

"We have a large problem with our pre-school and elementary children," Kalish stated today. "With them we have to expect anything. They are easily attracted to any object or person no matter where or what it is—they are very apt to dash in front of any moving car and not be aware of it at all. Children have no fear and are not aware of any potential danger in cars. They are noted for poor judgment and are apt to change their minds in the middle of crossing the street."

Must Stay Alert

"Most of us want to be alert and know what to expect . . . but with children you never know what to expect. Children cannot be adults. We as adults and parents must be responsible for their safety. As drivers forget worrying about whether or not you have the right of way and start thinking about giving consideration to children and other pedestrians. As parents teach your children to use playgrounds or safe play areas away from traffic hazards. Remember that the safety training you give your children will be completely successful only when you also obey the rules and safe practices. Know the safety rules you expect your children to follow and follow them yourself," he added.

"With spring upon us, the number of bicycles on the roads in Kingston and out in the county will increase one-hundred fold. When you are passing someone riding a bike keep your eyes on him until you are past him. Make sure that you and the bicycle have enough room. Each driver is not king of the road but must share it with other people. Bicycles too have rules they must follow. Traffic laws are bicycle laws too. In Kingston, according to city law, children over eleven must ride bicycles in the street and not on the sidewalks. This makes it doubly important for us to all do our parts in making Kingston and the county a safe place to live," the Safety Council president said.

"Don't take chances with someone else's life . . . it might be your own, or your child's. Take it easy . . . remember you were a kid once too," Kalish concluded.

Dewey to Observe Tests

Albany, N. Y., April 7 (AP)—Governor Dewey will fly west on April 18 to observe atomic tests to be staged on the desert near Las Vegas, Nev. Dewey, with other governors, was invited by Millard Caldwell, director of the U. S. Civil Defense Commission. Before leaving, the governor must act on approximately 500 of more than 1,000 measures approved by the 1952 Legislature. The deadline for his action is April 19.

Firemen Check Burners

Firemen received two calls for excessive oil in burners and one for a short circuit blaze over the weekend. The first oil burner call was to 189½ Elmendorf street in the apartment of Howard Hotaling at 1:07 p. m., Saturday. The other at 10:23 a. m., today was in the apartment of Mrs. Lena Wolven, 143 Greenkill avenue. The short in the electric wire was on a pole near 142 Hunter street shortly after 6:30 p. m., Saturday.

Talk With Stalin

that a meeting of the big power chiefs of state would be useful.

2. The International Economic Conference now underway here at which M. V. Nesterov, president of Russia's chamber of commerce, said Saturday that the Soviet Union is ready for a vast expansion of trade with all countries.

3. The Russian proposal nearly a month ago that the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union get together to negotiate a peace treaty with a United Germany.

The Indian ambassador talked with Stalin during a farewell call before leaving April 8 for India to become his country's vice president.

Have Frank Discussion

The Indian Embassy said Sir Sarvapalli and Stalin had a "very frank discussion on many of the issues which are now agitating the world."

"It would be unwise to bang the door against every approach and give up the task as impossible," said the ambassador after the talk, adding, "no effort is wasted. And every effort should be made to get the top people together."

Radhakrishman said Stalin looked "as usual" and was in a "good humor." He had had one previous interview with the prime minister, upon his arrival here in January, 1950.

Though there was no immediately official reaction in the western world to this latest suggestion for a top level conference, non-Communist observers generally have considered the other recent Soviet moves as propaganda designed to arouse false hopes of peaceful Communist intentions in the west and to undermine the western rearmament program.

Financial and Commercial

By RICHARD FISKE

New York, April 7 (AP)—Prices fell fractions to around two points on the stock market today in the face of widespread strikes and threats of strikes.

A walkout in the strategic steel industry, set for midnight tomorrow, was the major factor being discussed by traders.

Steel stocks, rail issues and motors were under pressure. Activity in the market generally was moderate.

Ultimatums Reported By Egypt to Britain

Cairo, Egypt, April 7 (AP)—Cairo newspapers reported a variety of ultimatums by Egypt's government to Britain today. A British embassy spokesman said the embassy had "no knowledge of anything in the nature of an ultimatum."

British Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson, meanwhile, conferred for an hour with Prime Minister Ahmed Naguib Hilaly Pasha and Foreign Minister Abdel Khalek Hassouna Pasha.

Stevenson said they continued their "exchange of views" on Egypt's demand for British withdrawal from the Suez Canal zone and for recognition of Egypt's claims to sovereignty over the million-square-mile Sudan. Britain so far has refused the demands.

Later, U. S. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery spent a few moments with Hilaly. Hassouna said the two continued their "exchange of views."

Strike Is Snarl

But no immediate picketing was reported.

In Nashville, Tenn., C. W. Gwin, state CWA director, said he may consider putting up picket lines later, but the strike was on.

Weaver made his statement shortly after talks for installation workers broke up. Later, the Western Electric sales personnel talks also ended in a deadlock. Both sides and federal negotiators said they would remain on hand in New York if a need for new talks becomes apparent.

The CWA met in all-night sessions with Telephone Company officials and mediators in Newark, N. J.; Cleveland, O.; Detroit, Mich.; and San Francisco.

In Newark and Detroit, negotiations continued past the 6 a. m. deadline although operators walked off their exchange jobs.

Federal mediators in Detroit said the company there raised its offer just before the strike deadline. The union said only that the new offer was "better." The Detroit talks then recessed until today.

Death was attributed to natural causes, an ambulance physician from Bellevue Hospital, said.

Dever, "favorite son" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Dever, who is expected to seek a third term, has said he would announce his political plans after Easter.

Dewey Signs Bill

drivers under 21, whether they own a car or not.

Drivers over 21 in New York state need not take out insurance until they have had an accident causing injuries or damage of $50 or more.

Signs Other Bills

Dewey signed other bills:

1—Creating a 15-member state commission for a study of a proposed statewide television network for education and cultural purposes.

2—Permitting the state conservation commissioner to spend excess funds obtained from the sale of forest preserve timber felled by the windstorm of Nov. 25, 1950. The money is to be used for the protection and improvement of the large forest preserves in the Adirondack and Catskill mountains.

3—Requiring a public corporation to make more technical reports and to take other steps before taking over private utilities. This measure was aimed at the Suffolk County Water Authority, headed by W. Kingsland Macy, a bitter Dewey foe.

Vetoed by Dewey

The governor vetoed bills that would have:

1—Permitted municipalities to add fluorine chemicals to their public water systems without prior approval by the state health commissioner, which now is required.

Dewey quoted the State Health Department sa saying the measure "might lead to the unnecessary or uncontrolled and dangerous addition" of the tooth-preserving substance to water.

2—Required persons who had three motor vehicle accidents within 12 months to take another operator's test. Present law fixes the period at 18 months.

3—Authorized municipalities to designate streets upon which persons with learners' permit could operate motor vehicles.

The anti-Macy measure regarding the Suffolk County Water Authority stemmed from a battle between the authority and the State Public Service Commission over the authority's acquisition of the South Bay Consolidated Co. for $7,320,000 last spring.

The PSC contended that the price should have been about half that amount. But the Dewey-controlled commission said it had no power to set aside the purchase.

Fala FDR Pet Dies

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Longtimers in the White House Secret Service were recalling stories today about "The Informer." That was their name for Fala, the perky little black Scotty, close friend of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Fala was buried yesterday in the famous rose garden at Hyde Park, N. Y., near the grave of his master, whose side he seldom left in life.

Fala died in his sleep Saturday, two days short of his 12th birthday. He lived seven years, less a week, after his master's death. Suffering from the infirmities of a dog's old age, Fala did manage to hold on until after Mrs. Roosevelt's return from India. They, too, had grown close, for to her he was a living link with the past, an ever-amusing clown whom her husband had greatly loved.

Campaign Is Launched

Johannesburg, South Africa, April 7 (AP)—Thousands of South Africa's non-whites launched a nationwide campaign against Prime Minister Daniel F. Milan's race laws yesterday. Initial rallies in the country's major cities went off peacefully. Leaders of Negro, Asiatic and colored (mixed blood) organizations hoped the drive would develop into a full-scale passive resistance movement aimed at crushing the government's policy of apartheid, or race segregation.

Lodge Discusses Aid

Paris, April 7 (AP)—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, manager of the Eisenhower-for-President movement in the United States, visited his candidate's military headquarters today—on military business. Spokesmen at SHAPE said there were no plans for Lodge to see Gen. Eisenhower at his headquarters near here. They quoted the senator as saying he would visit a number of officers and discuss with them the foreign aid bill now pending in Congress, and the progress of the western European military building.

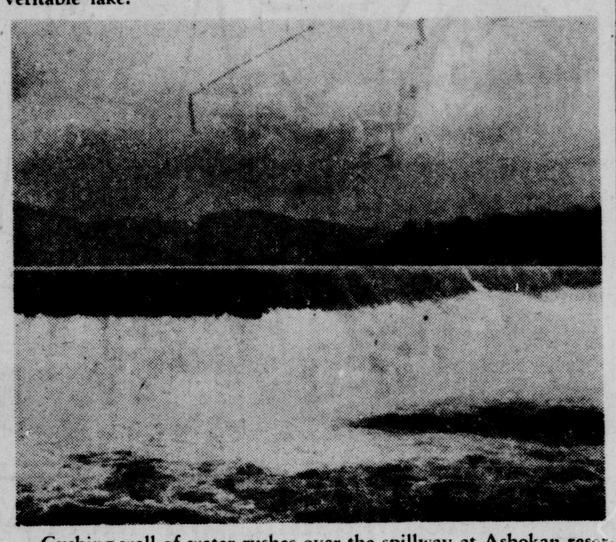
Pictorial Review of Esopus Creek on Rampage

Brabrant Road under water as Esopus Creek overflows its banks for second years in row and threatens homes.

The Barn, Bob Teetsel's night club across the Washington avenue viaduct on Route 28 once ruined by flood is surrounded by veritable lake.

City trucks and private vehicles draw furniture from homes threatened by rising waters to places of safety.



Gushing wall of water rushes over the spillway at Ashokan reservoir which has reached full capacity. (Wagenfohr Photos).

Esopus Creek Floods Valley

control work has been underway, much of the work done was damaged, Corporal Dunn reported.

At one time the highway was flooded near the Smith property just below Phoenicia.

High Water in the upper Esopus began to recede Sunday morning and the road was opened later in the morning.

At The Barn on the Onteora Trail the water rose to depth of about four feet between the bridge and the Sawkill road but, although the water entered some parts of The Barn it did not flood the dance floor. The Pilot House, a refreshment stand at The Barn, was flooded Sunday to the top of the counter. Anticipating damage, Bob Teetsel, proprietor of The Barn, began to remove furnishings early Sunday morning and due to the warnings issued damage was kept to a minimum.

School Flooded

In Kingston the creek flowing past the new Washington school became clogged at the tunnel under Wall and Fair streets and water backed up in the tunnels through which heating pipes and electrical wiring runs from the boiler room. The water backed up through a temporary dyke along the creek and entered the corridor, the boiler room and the janntor's apartment of the school.

Emergency crews removed the oil burners and motors from the boiler room and the Board of Public Works and private crews worked with earth moving equipment to throw dirt embankments across the doors on the lower floor to prevent further flooding. This caused water to flow through the tunnels to the boiler room and at one time there was two feet of water in the boiler room. About three inches of water covered the floors in the janitor's apartment.

All heat in the building was cut off when the oil burners were removed and the work of re-installing the equipment was under way today. There was no heat in the building this morning but school sessions were held. It was stated that if heat could not be secured later today it might be necessary to release students as temperature in the building dropped.

No estimate of damage to the building could be given until a survey is made later. It was not expected to be great in the corridors or boiler room since the floors are asphalt tile. The floor in the apartment is of wood and may be damaged. Fire department and B.P.W. pumpers were used to pump out the building.

This condition will be eliminated when the Elizabeth street storm sewer, now under construction, is completed.

Ernest Steuding, superintendent of the Board of Public Works, removed two truck loads of furnishings from the Murphy street area Sunday but they were returned today when the water dropped.

Red Cross Out

Walter Tremper, chairman of the Red Cross disaster committee, and Mrs. Dorothy Adams, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter, were on the job Saturday night and all day Sunday giving emergency relief and supplying the workers with hot coffee and rolls. One family was cared for by the Red Cross and assistance was given to others who had their heating and cooking plants put out of commission. Sunday several people were given emergency aid and supplied with hot food. The Red Cross emergency crews worked in the Orlando street, Murphy street and the Hurley section throughout the day.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk was on the scene from the time danger threatened and supervised the evacuation of families and furnishings.

In Hurley sand bags were placed along a section of the Mountain road to prevent the water from reaching homes on the lowlands back of the Hurley church.

Members of the 156th Field Artillery also assisted in the rescue work in the town of Ulster.

Sheriff Cluett Schantz and his deputies worked throughout Saturday and Sunday, stationing men at strategic points and directing traffic around the flood area.

Estimate Peak Points

The sheriff's office estimated that the flood reached its peak at 8 p. m. Saturday at the upper Esopus creek and at 4:30 a. m. Sunday at the Spillway. The crest did not reach the Onteora Trail and Brabrant road area until 1:30 p. m. Sunday and thereafter began to slowly recede.

In the New Paltz area the Springtown-Libertyville and Mud Hook roads were blocked to traffic by the county highway department after the sheriff's office received reports at 10:30 p. m. Saturday that those roads were flooded. Route 32 however remained open.

Throughout the city of Kingston the Board of Public Works was called on to pump out numerous cellars and on Lucas avenue an overflowing brook caused cellars to become flooded and pumping was resorted to. Mr. Steuding said the city was called to numerous places in the city to pump and several cellars on the Strand were flooded.

At Accord the Mombaccus creek overflowed Route 209 for a time Saturday night. Traffic was held up about two hours.

The Salvation Army also was on the job rendering assistance to flood victims.

Reservoir Full

For the second year in succession the Ashokan reservoir was full when the spring freshet came and did not act as a flood control agency as it has for many years. The Shandaken tunnel has been turned off for several days.

In previous years with the Ashokan reservoir at a lower level, it has acted as a flood control agency preventing the water from the upper Esopus creek flowing down the stream to add to the lower creek run off.

The past weekend flood condition was very similar to conditions which existed years ago prior to the Ashokan reservoir construction. Years ago the flood was almost an annual happening.

Appreciate Warning

Credit for the reduced damage this year can be attributed to the splendid warning which was given residents in the valley when it was ascertained that the creek would reach flood stage.

The flood coming at the same time that Queen Juliana of The Netherlands was visiting Kingston, posed a manpower problem for state police, Kingston police and the sheriff's office. A large detail of state police had been assigned to escort the Queen's motor cavalcade, all Kingston police had already been assigned to posts throughout the city, and the sheriff's office had detailed 10 deputies to assist the local police during the Queen's visit.

Peter Mead, 20, of Highland was hospitalized with a fractured shoulder and collarbone and four passengers were treated for lesser injuries after the automobile Mead was driving turned over off the right side of Route 9W one mile south of Marlborough about 11 p. m. Saturday, state police of Highland reported.

Troopers listed the passengers in the car, which was traveling south, as William Lucas, 18, of Highland; Pvt. John M. Clark, U. S. Army Band; Barbara DeMuth, 16, Newburgh; and Margaret Kubina, 16, New Windsor.

The injured were taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh, where all except Mead were released after treatment, troopers said.

His cautious optimism was tempered by these immediate developments:

At Pittsburgh and in nearby steel towns, there was the gloomy feeling that the strike, postponed several times, cannot now be avoided. Mills cooled their furnaces and closed their coal mines. Steel workers were holding on to their cash, and merchants reported an Easter buying slump.

Major manufacturing firms planned for steel shortages. The General Electric Co. instructed its executives in a news letter to stop all overtime work as soon as a steel strike started.

One spark briefly lighted the dreary picture—the Barium Steel Company, with four Pennsylvania plants and 3,600 workers, signed an independent agreement with the union, which now has pacts covering four companies with 11,000 workers.

650,000 Involved

But these firms produce less than two per cent of the more than two million tons of steel turned out each week. More than 650,000 workers are involved in the over-all dispute.

The independents accepted the union's terms, that contracts be based on the Wage Stabilization Board's recommendation for a 17½-cents-an-hour total wage increase and other benefits.

Other steel firms, including the "Big Six" have opposed the board's recommendations.

Industry says the WSB "package" amounts to a 30-cent-an-hour boost and that its own "package" offer is 16 cents. The union says the industry "package" is 14.4 cents. Present wages average about $1.88 an hour.

Dewey Signs Bill

drivers under 21, whether they own a car or not.

Drivers over 21 in New York state need not take out insurance until they have had an accident causing injuries or damage of $50 or more.

Signs Other Bills

Dewey signed other bills:

1—Creating a 15-member state commission for a study of a proposed statewide television network for education and cultural purposes.

2—Permitting the state conservation commissioner to spend excess funds obtained from the sale of forest preserve timber felled by the windstorm of Nov. 25, 1950. The money is to be used for the protection and improvement of the large forest preserves in the Adirondack and Catskill mountains.

3—Requiring a public corporation to make more technical reports and to take other steps before taking over private utilities. This measure was aimed at the Suffolk County Water Authority, headed by W. Kingsland Macy, a bitter Dewey foe.

Vetoed by Dewey

The governor vetoed bills that would have:

1—Permitted municipalities to add fluorine chemicals to their public water systems without prior approval by the state health commissioner, which now is required.

Dewey quoted the State Health Department sa saying the measure "might lead to the unnecessary or uncontrolled and dangerous addition" of the tooth-preserving substance to water.

2—Required persons who had three motor vehicle accidents within 12 months to take another operator's test. Present law fixes the period at 18 months.

3—Authorized municipalities to designate streets upon which persons with learners' permit could operate motor vehicles.

The anti-Macy measure regarding the Suffolk County Water Authority stemmed from a battle between the authority and the State Public Service Commission over the authority's acquisition of the South Bay Consolidated Co. for $7,320,000 last spring.

The PSC contended that the price should have been about half that amount. But the Dewey-controlled commission said it had no power to set aside the purchase.

Fala FDR Pet Dies

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Longtimers in the White House Secret Service were recalling stories today about "The Informer." That was their name for Fala, the perky little black Scotty, close friend of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Fala was buried yesterday in the famous rose garden at Hyde Park, N. Y., near the grave of his master, whose side he seldom left in life.

Fala died in his sleep Saturday, two days short of his 12th birthday. He lived seven years, less a week, after his master's death. Suffering from the infirmities of a dog's old age, Fala did manage to hold on until after Mrs. Roosevelt's return from India. They, too, had grown close, for to her he was a living link with the past, an ever-amusing clown whom her husband had greatly loved.

Campaign Is Launched

Johannesburg, South Africa, April 7 (AP)—Thousands of South Africa's non-whites launched a nationwide campaign against Prime Minister Daniel F. Milan's race laws yesterday. Initial rallies in the country's major cities went off peacefully. Leaders of Negro, Asiatic and colored (mixed blood) organizations hoped the drive would develop into a full-scale passive resistance movement aimed at crushing the government's policy of apartheid, or race segregation.

Lodge Discusses Aid

Paris, April 7 (AP)—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, manager of the Eisenhower-for-President movement in the United States, visited his candidate's military headquarters today—on military business. Spokesmen at SHAPE said there were no plans for Lodge to see Gen. Eisenhower at his headquarters near here. They quoted the senator as saying he would visit a number of officers and discuss with them the foreign aid bill now pending in Congress, and the progress of the western European military building.

Pictorial Review of Esopus Creek on Rampage

The Barn, Bob Teetsel's night club across the Washington avenue viaduct on Route 28 once ruined by flood is surrounded by veritable lake.

City trucks and private vehicles draw furniture from homes threatened by rising waters to places of safety.

control work has been underway, much of the work done was damaged, Corporal Dunn reported.

At one time the highway was flooded near the Smith property just below Phoenicia.

High Water in the upper Esopus began to recede Sunday morning and the road was opened later in the morning.

At The Barn on the Onteora Trail the water rose to depth of about four feet between the bridge and the Sawkill road but, although the water entered some parts of The Barn it did not flood the dance floor. The Pilot House, a refreshment stand at The Barn, was flooded Sunday to the top of the counter. Anticipating damage, Bob Teetsel, proprietor of The Barn, began to remove furnishings early Sunday morning and due to the warnings issued damage was kept to a minimum.

School Flooded

In Kingston the creek flowing past the new Washington school became clogged at the tunnel under Wall and Fair streets and water backed up in the tunnels through which heating pipes and electrical wiring runs from the boiler room. The water backed up through a temporary dyke along the creek and entered the corridor, the boiler room and the janntor's apartment of the school.

Emergency crews removed the oil burners and motors from the boiler room and the Board of Public Works and private crews worked with earth moving equipment to throw dirt embankments across the doors on the lower floor to prevent further flooding. This caused water to flow through the tunnels to the boiler room and at one time there was two feet of water in the boiler room. About three inches of water covered the floors in the janitor's apartment.

All heat in the building was cut off when the oil burners were removed and the work of re-installing the equipment was under way today. There was no heat in the building this morning but school sessions were held. It was stated that if heat could not be secured later today it might be necessary to release students as temperature in the building dropped.

No estimate of damage to the building could be given until a survey is made later. It was not expected to be great in the corridors or boiler room since the floors are asphalt tile. The floor in the apartment is of wood and may be damaged. Fire department and B.P.W. pumpers were used to pump out the building.

This condition will be eliminated when the Elizabeth street storm sewer, now under construction, is completed.

Ernest Steuding, superintendent of the Board of Public Works, removed two truck loads of furnishings from the Murphy street area Sunday but they were returned today when the water dropped.

BIG BATTLES ARE COMING UP

Senator Taft's primary victories in Wisconsin and Nebraska restore momentum to his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

It is not proper to describe this as a "comeback" for the senator, since he really had never been any place to come back from. To be sure, a good many self-styled political experts began burying Taft immediately after the New Hampshire and Minnesota showings by General Eisenhower. But the real professionals were not among them.

As the professionals saw it, Taft was first slowed and then temporarily halted in what had been a quite steady advance for him from the moment he started corraling delegates' promises last year. But none of his very solid strength had fallen away.

He was, however, then in the position of having to deliver real evidence of his ability to win a primary contest. A failure to demonstrate this would have added pace to the Esenhower drive and definitely cut into Taft's backlog of strength.

Thus, on the eve of the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries, Taft was at a genuine crossroads. He had to win and win handsomely to avoid slipping downhill. This was doubly so because the senator himself had called Wisconsin the key to his primary campaign, and his aides had said he was finished if he could not triumph there.

Taft did win, capturing the maximum number of convention delegates claimed for him—24 out of a possible 30. Furthermore, he outdistanced his nearest rival, Governor Warren of California, by close to 55,000 votes.

In addition, Taft got a pleasant windfall from Nebraska, where he defeated Eisenhower by upwards of 10,000 votes in a double write-in contest inspired by the general's Minnesota performance.

To delegates, prospective delegates and assorted professionals either in Taft's camp or trending that way, this double victory was extremely heartening. It enables them to shrug off the old doubts about the senator's ability to win. In states with delegate-picking conventions just ahead, more delegates will now be committed to Taft than would have been with another outcome in Wisconsin and Nebraska.

But none of this means that Eisenhower, in his turn, is now fading, any more than Taft was sagging seriously before April 1. The Wisconsin result was not a defeat for Ike, since he was not a candidate there.

It is true the Warren delegates pledged themselves to support Ike if and when the California governor is out of the race, and that Harold Stassen offered to allot Ike half of any delegates he won. But no one can calculate what the effect of these promises was on the voters of Wisconsin. No one can say either defeated man represented Ike.

The Eisenhower people may take some solace, too, from the fact that the combined Stassen-Warren vote, which presumably falls roughly in the same category as the Eisenhower vote, totaled more than 110,000 greater than Taft's vote.

In other words, Taft was not the choice of a majority of those who voted in the GOP primary. Since party crossovers are easy in Wisconsin, quite a few Democrats could have joined this opposition. Yet again, there is no way of being sure how much of the anti-Taft votes was not Republican. In sum, Taft's victory there and in Nebraska was substantial. It should convince the people who see a boom or a bust in every primary result that this is a horse race. Taft's next test, in Illinois, is rated a fairly soft one for him. But then come New Jersey and Pennsylvania, where Eisenhower stands in well.

The two major candidates both have momentum now. And the crucial swing toward one or the other has not yet been made.

It seems that the first patent for a corkscrew was issued in 1860. Which recalls the story of the northerner and southerner who forgathered during or after the War Between the States. "Look at my new knife," said the Ohioan proudly. It has fourteen blades and a corkscrew!" "That's nothing," countered the Kentuckian. "My knife has fourteen corkscrews and one blade!"

---

Some of the current Congressional investigations recall by their conduct the old story about the veteran juror. Asked by a friend getting on the jury for the first time how to know which side to believe, he replied, "That's easy. I look at them and say to myself, 'Well, if they ain't done nothing, what are they here for?' And I bring them all in guilty."

IMPARTIALITY

It is so often suggested that columnists and editors be impartial, which generally means to be unhuman. For the human mind was made to think, to draw conclusions, to reach decisions. Impartiality is not a virtue; it is an escape from responsibility.

In the 1952 election, the issues are so important for the future not only of our country but of our civilization that impartiality can even be a weapon for our defeat. I saw the other day that the governor of New Jersey, Alfred E. Driscoll, made a plea for unity, which is a lovely sounding word that dictators like Hitler and Stalin used as an opiate. Ferdinand and Isabella, back at the end of the 15th century in Spain, sought to enforce "unity" and destroyed a great empire.

Unity, in effect, means a total acknowledgment that free opinion is a vice. One accepts the dicta of those who rule, and kowtows to the superiority of the slogan over the debate.

Unfortunately for General Eisenhower's reputation, the mechanics of his campaign tried to achieve unity within the Republican Party by the blitz method. One argument tried on me was that Taft, by insisting upon running, was impairing the unity of the Republican Party. At the time this argument was presented, to it was added the horrifying prediction that if Taft did not withdraw, Truman would be elected.

I could not help asking why is it not equally true that because General Eisenhower insists upon running, he is preventing the ectoplasm of unity from enveloping Taft. After all, Taft is a Republican by registration, by voting record and by leadership in the party for many years, whereas Eisenhower is a newcomer whose assertion of party affiliation was never accompanied by a promise of party loyalty.

Actually, it is best for a political party when there are many candidates and a big fight. The more candidates, the wilder the fight, the better the opportunity of the people to assert themselves. Why suppress anyone who believes himself suited for the Presidency?

Harold Stassen, for instance, believes that he is suited to be President of the United States. In 1948, he developed an enormous following, particularly among young people, so that he was the most popular man at the Republican convention.

In 1952, Stassen's day had passed. His own state, Minnesota, gave Eisenhower such a write-in vote as to contest Stassen's leadership; in Wisconsin, he was snowed under altogether. These are his states, and having lost them, he has no position of leadership left.

Harold Stassen, on the basis of his 1948 reputation, was entitled to run in this year's primaries. He tested his strength and found it inadequate. He can now seek the attorney general's office, although I am sure that he would prefer to be secretary of state. Even for these jobs, his political claims are inadequate. Neither Taft nor Eisenhower needs him.

The case of Governor Warren is different. He came into the Wisconsin Republican primary and established that he can get a large Democratic vote. How much of that vote was for Eisenhower and how much for Warren will never be known, but politically it is a Warren credit and places him in position to be a candidate for vice-president, an alternative candidate for President in the event of a deadlock, or a member of the cabinet should a Republican be elected.

The large write-in votes in several states may ultimately destroy the institution of the primary because it alters its nature from a party operation to a general election. It also puts upon the party the pressure of money corruption in the primaries, which will sooner or later be exposed to every candidate's detriment. A way will be found to uncover the unbelievably huge expenditures in these primaries, most of which are indirect and secret. The day will come when the cost of this operation will become a public scandal. Every write-in is an organized, directed effort like the advertising scheme of using box-tops.

In fact, one of the reasons that there are so few candidates in a country so rich in suitable personalities is that it costs too much to run. The candidate has to become a beggar among the rich or the labor unions and he may, if he is spineless, become their slave

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

Some years ago I was commissioned by the government to make a physical examination of the boys in a reform school. Although my work consisted of examining the entire body—eyes, hearing, lungs, heart and other organs—I took time to talk to the boys and ask about their home life. I learned that the majority of the boys came from homes broken by death, desertion or divorce. Another fact I learned was that when the mother died first, delinquency occurred sooner.

Our research workers in juvenile delinquency state that the period before the child starts school, ages 3 and 4, is the critical age.

Who is responsible for juvenile delinquency? In Postgraduate Medicine, Dr. Nathan Blackman discusses the various persons or agencies which have much to do with this problem. He states that schoolteachers and the community as a whole have some responsibility for juvenile delinquency.

"The modern concept of motivation of antisocial behavior must not remain the special responsibility of any one professional discipline. It ought to be shared and become a part of the consciousness of every intelligent adult, so that the prevention as well as the handling of wayward youth becomes a part of everyone's responsibility and not alone the responsibility of the authorities who handle the problem from the legal standpoint."

A cause of delinquency may be a physical defect—cross eye, poor eyesight, a loss of hearing. The youth may develop an inferiority complex or may try to make up for the physical defect by "lashing out" at those who are normal. However, the greatest blame, states Dr. Blackman, rests with the parents. "The growing child is raised with a sense of isolation, an apprehension and tension which stem or arise from the emotional aloofness shown by immature parents. The thought then is for parents to go closely into the matter of school reports, make sure that physical defects are corrected insofar as it is possible and see that the youngster plays and mixes with others, thus learning to take his own part and respect the rights of others."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Inside story of how the steel wage talks got fouled up would have been a comedy of errors if it had not been so crucial to the country. A better name might be a tragedy of errors.

After it was all over, Eric Johnston, former economic stabilizer, asked Nate Feinsinger, head of the Wage Stabilization Board:

"What happened to the coordination we used to have down there? You and I used to confer on the telephone every day, and when you had a tough wage dispute I used to come down and sit with your board and explain why wages couldn't be increased because we couldn't increase prices."

The wage board chairman replied that he had been in touch with both his chiefs, Mobilizer Wilson and Economic Stabilizer Putnam, in advance of the wage decision. Technically this was true. Actually their coordination was woefully haphazard, as indicated by the following inside story.

When Charles E. Wilson served in Washington during World War 2, he realized the futility of having wages, prices, production, and bank credits all regulated by independent agencies. So, when he came back to Washington after Korea, he told Truman that, to check inflation you had to put all under one man. Truman agreed. Thus Wilson became the most powerful man in Washington. This power to check inflation was well correlated under Stabilizer Johnston. But when he bowed out, here is the tragic story of what happened in regard to steel.

The Steel Story

Actually, Wilson, Wage Chairman Feinsinger, and new Economic Stabilizer Putnam had agreed in advance that steelworkers were entitled to a total 16-cent package increase including holidays and fringe benefits. Union leaders knew this, which was why one top CIO leader, on hearing that the wage board reported a 26-cent hourly package, remarked:

"That's not a package. That's a carload!"

The day before this 26-cent recommendation was announced by the Wage Board, Wilson, Feinsinger and Putnam had met, and Feinsinger had reported it would be a 27-cent an hour total pay and fringe benefits hike. "It's the best I can do," he reported.

"If it's the best you can do, it's the best you can do," was Wilson's philosophic reply.

At that time there was no consultation with Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall, and apparently no great worry over increasing steel prices.

Next day, chairman Feinsinger persuaded his Wage Board to reduce the package from 27 to 26 cents, and the first results were announced.

Hide-and-Seek in New York

Simultaneously, Ben Fairless, head of the giant U. S. steel corporation, invited Economic Stabilizer Putnam to meet with the Iron and Steel Institute. Putnam went to New York, then suggested that his chief, Mobilizer Wilson, came up to New York also. The situation was somewhat embarrassing, since Putnam was supposed to deal with the steel executives in his office in Washington on an official basis, not informally in New York.

However, Fairless phoned Wilson in Washington, asking him to come to New York, and Wilson took the next plane.

Meanwhile, Putnam told the steel moguls he didn't want to meet with them until Wilson arrived, so he waited elsewhere.

Through a fluke, Wilson got to New York and went to the Iron and Steel meeting direct, without Putnam. His economic stabilizer waited, not knowing his chief had arrived.

And during the session between Wilson and the steel industry, they sold him the idea of increasing the price of steel to compensate for the increase in steel wages.

When Putnam heard about this later, he was sore. Undoubtedly he was sore at being left out of the talks; but, more important, he pointed out that his job was to keep down inflation and that a hike in steel prices would mean hiking the price of almost every other industrial commodity. He said he wanted to take the matter up with President Truman in Key West.

Accordingly, Charlie Wilson phoned Key West, reported back to Putnam that the President wanted to see him, Wilson, not Putnam. This did not make the economic stabilizer any happier.

"Wages Too High"—Truman

However, Wilson flew to Key West, where the first thing Truman told him was: "This wage increase is too high." Acting on this, Wilson later announced that the wage increase was too high, whereupon CIO Chief Phil Murray, in a rage, refused to meet with Wilson, instead phoned Key West, according to associates practically "jumping down the President's throat."

A few days later, the President came back to Washington.

In the interim, the following snarled-up events had happened: 1) Wilson had told the steel industry privately that the wage increase was too high, while telling the public that a wage increase must be tied to a price increase; 2) His irate stabilizer, Roger Putnam, had got his back up against any price increase at all; and 3) His price chief, Ellis Arnall, who had scarcely been consulted, was equally, if not more, opposed to a price increase.

Faced with this, the President called in all three gentlemen, plus his assistant, John Steelman. As they entered the room, he gave Wilson a nasty look and remarked:

"I thought you were a poker player."

The President then proceeded to bawl his defense mobilizer out for having let the steel industry know he would increase prices without bargaining first. He also told Wilson to call in the steel companies and reverse himself—persuade them to take a wage hike without a price hike.

Red in the face, Wilson said: "I'm not going to do it."

It was about as flat a statement as you make to a President of the United States. Later that day, Wilson resigned.

Sudden Peace Would Shake War-Geared Economy of Nation; No Plans Ready for Shift

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—With all the campaign speeches and all the voluminous reports from committees of Congress on economic subjects, not a single proposal or plan has been developed by the administration or its opponents to deal with the situation that might arise in the event of a "sudden peace."

There are signs on the horizon that Communist Russia wants to ease the tension. This will not, of course, cause any immediate alteration in American or Allied policy, but there is always the possibility that a sudden upset inside the Iron Curtain countries may produce such a crisis as to make it seem certain that tension is going to be removed for a long period of time from the international scene.

In military strategy, the persons responsible for planning customarily take into account every contingency and prepare as best they can to meet it.

In economic strategy, the same kind of preparation is necessary, but curiously enough nothing has been done on the subject by any responsible body in either the executive or the legislative branch of the government.

If Stalin were overthrown, or some substantial segment of the Communist bloc revolted, the immediate effect on the American economy would be one of shock and perhaps panic in the markets. The American economy is underpinned today by defense orders. Contracts would be canceled by the billions.

Profits are taxed today to such an extent that American businesses have just about thirty cents left out of the profit dollar — not enough to build the reserves needed to cushion such a shock. It will not be possible to reduce wage levels overnight and many companies would be forced to the wall.

The present situation is far more dangerous than any which existed during World War 2. Congress knew that the end of the war would bring a deflation of war orders. So the program was tapered off as slowly as possible between V-E Day and V-J Day. The companies which were released for conversion of their plants to civilian production were given several months' warning and the benefit of a refund of tax payments. It was fixed by law long before the end of the war was in sight.

This system of refunds—permitting, for example, 1946 losses to be put up against 1945 profits, and allowing for tax refunds—saved America from an economic catastrophe in the post-war period. It prevented widespread unemployment and gave the American economic system a chance to adjust itself to new conditions of so-called peace time.

But no such refunds—based on subtracting current losses from the profits of the two preceding years—are provided for in any law now. There are limited carrybacks for one year and a provision for credits in future years, but this does not furnish working capital at once or keep companies from going into receivership. The relief will not be enough because much of the excess-profits-tax payments will not be recoverable. The whole problem needs study and legislation.

Perhaps the most serious phase of the matter today is the fact that payments of corporation taxes nowadays are being accelerated so that the entire year's tax payments are not deferred till the next calendar year, as used to be the case. This very lag in the schedule of payments was what enabled many a company in 1946 to readjust itself financially even before the refunds became available. For the legal procedures on refunds can sometimes be lengthy and, in the mean time, companies find them selves without adequate working capital to continue operations. Banks are reluctant to lend in anticipation of refund payments by the government because there are many technical points and risks involved in such cases.

Entirely apart from the problem of using refunds from excess-profits-tax payments as a means of supplying pools of capital for business, no plan has been worked out for immediate launching of public-works programs that have been deferred because of the Korean War emergency. Unless a program for such construction proectjs were ready for instant operation, there would be valuable time lost in drawing up such plans. The steel industry would certainly suffer if its 120,000,000-ton capacity became a glut.

Moscow cannot convince America overnight that its intentions are sincere, but a series of deeds might be persuasive. Certainly a revolt inside Russia would precipitate such a deflationary cycle in this country that the damage would be greater than any post-war readjustment in past history.

It is strange how indifferent the American government is to "sudden peace" and how preoccupied most everybody here is with the idea of inevitable war or, at least prolonged tension. It would be a wonderful thing for the whole world if an era of peace were ushered in even if the economic consequences were bad. There is no reason, however, why careful planning by government and industry and labor cannot cushion the shock of "sudden peace."

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I never knew that the Warner family story could bring about so much interest from so many directions. For instance one reader was able to tell me that a Pete B. Warner and his wife Mary joined the Wurts Street Baptist Church, corner Spring street, "by letter" from Gloversville, Feb. 1, 1877. They had a daughter, Mary, who was baptized April 17, 1887. Peter was in the harness business. There was also a Daniel Warner of the same church who joined by Baptism April 6, 1879. There is no record showing that they were related. Church records are important, first because as a rule they are accurate and written and kept by sincere people. Most of our early records were preserved because of the ministers and church books and records. I certainly appreciate folks looking in old church records to find information for other readers of this column.

In the question asked by Myrtice A. Blatchly of the New York State Museum of Albany Elmer P. Goetz of 21 Stanley street, brought an interesting book. It is called "Historical Sketches of Hudson, N. Y. Emcity, churches, press, schools, libraries, etc., dated 1862." It was written by Stephen B. Miller. There is a chaper on "Ferry". It reads in part: "July 26, 1785, B. Folger, T. Jenks and Ezra Reed were the committee appointed to regulate and rent the ferry. After the canoe had given way to a boat 20 feet long and very narrow and sharp at both ends. In order to carry teams across, the horses were placed one at each end of the boat and timbers laid across it, upon which the wagon rested. The ferry did not pass fully into the control of the city until 1790. At the time the boat described gave way to the boat with sails, so constructed that teams could enter from either end. Some of the following regulations were established: "For every single person, except sucking child 1s.6d. Man, horse, ox, cow, 1s.6d. Loaded wagon or ox cart, 2s.6d. Empty wagon or cartt 1s.6d. Dead sheep or lambs 3d. Live sheep or lamb 4d. Barrel of run, sugar and molasses, 6d. Pail of butter, 1 penny, firkin or tub, 2d. Bushel of wheat, peas or grain 1 penny."

They further stated: One half more was charged when "Ferry was compelled on account of low water to go around the flats. Before sunrise and in the evening, the ferryman was entitled to double rates. He was to keep two scows, with four able hands each, and to run constantly from sunrise to sunset, wind and weather permitting, or forfeit 20 shillings for every neglect. On the arrival of the boat at Loonenburgh landing, it was the duty of some one of the ferrymen to blow a shell or trumpet, in order to give immediate notice of such arrival, and to remain there 15 minutes." There is no mention of a rope ferry.

"The use of scows continued until spring of 1816, when they gave place to the horse-boat, which was built by William Johnson, at the cost of $6,000." They do not say the year the steamboat ferry came to being at Hudson, but it seems it was before 1862 when the book was written. They mention City Ordinances of 1785. One reads: "Storekeepers were prohibited from throwing glass in the streets, boys from swimming near the ferry landing. Men were not allowed to chop wood on Main street "with an axe", etc.

BIG BATTLES ARE COMING UP

Senator Taft's primary victories in Wisconsin and Nebraska restore momentum to his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

It is not proper to describe this as a "comeback" for the senator, since he really had never been any place to come back from. To be sure, a good many self-styled political experts began burying Taft immediately after the New Hampshire and Minnesota showings by General Eisenhower. But the real professionals were not among them.

As the professionals saw it, Taft was first slowed and then temporarily halted in what had been a quite steady advance for him from the moment he started corraling delegates' promises last year. But none of his very solid strength had fallen away.

He was, however, then in the position of having to deliver real evidence of his ability to win a primary contest. A failure to demonstrate this would have added pace to the Esenhower drive and definitely cut into Taft's backlog of strength.

Thus, on the eve of the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries, Taft was at a genuine crossroads. He had to win and win handsomely to avoid slipping downhill. This was doubly so because the senator himself had called Wisconsin the key to his primary campaign, and his aides had said he was finished if he could not triumph there.

Taft did win, capturing the maximum number of convention delegates claimed for him—24 out of a possible 30. Furthermore, he outdistanced his nearest rival, Governor Warren of California, by close to 55,000 votes.

In addition, Taft got a pleasant windfall from Nebraska, where he defeated Eisenhower by upwards of 10,000 votes in a double write-in contest inspired by the general's Minnesota performance.

To delegates, prospective delegates and assorted professionals either in Taft's camp or trending that way, this double victory was extremely heartening. It enables them to shrug off the old doubts about the senator's ability to win. In states with delegate-picking conventions just ahead, more delegates will now be committed to Taft than would have been with another outcome in Wisconsin and Nebraska.

But none of this means that Eisenhower, in his turn, is now fading, any more than Taft was sagging seriously before April 1. The Wisconsin result was not a defeat for Ike, since he was not a candidate there.

It is true the Warren delegates pledged themselves to support Ike if and when the California governor is out of the race, and that Harold Stassen offered to allot Ike half of any delegates he won. But no one can calculate what the effect of these promises was on the voters of Wisconsin. No one can say either defeated man represented Ike.

The Eisenhower people may take some solace, too, from the fact that the combined Stassen-Warren vote, which presumably falls roughly in the same category as the Eisenhower vote, totaled more than 110,000 greater than Taft's vote.

In other words, Taft was not the choice of a majority of those who voted in the GOP primary. Since party crossovers are easy in Wisconsin, quite a few Democrats could have joined this opposition. Yet again, there is no way of being sure how much of the anti-Taft votes was not Republican. In sum, Taft's victory there and in Nebraska was substantial. It should convince the people who see a boom or a bust in every primary result that this is a horse race. Taft's next test, in Illinois, is rated a fairly soft one for him. But then come New Jersey and Pennsylvania, where Eisenhower stands in well.

The two major candidates both have momentum now. And the crucial swing toward one or the other has not yet been made.

Some of the current Congressional investigations recall by their conduct the old story about the veteran juror. Asked by a friend getting on the jury for the first time how to know which side to believe, he replied, "That's easy. I look at them and say to myself, 'Well, if they ain't done nothing, what are they here for?' And I bring them all in guilty."

IMPARTIALITY

It is so often suggested that columnists and editors be impartial, which generally means to be unhuman. For the human mind was made to think, to draw conclusions, to reach decisions. Impartiality is not a virtue; it is an escape from responsibility.

In the 1952 election, the issues are so important for the future not only of our country but of our civilization that impartiality can even be a weapon for our defeat. I saw the other day that the governor of New Jersey, Alfred E. Driscoll, made a plea for unity, which is a lovely sounding word that dictators like Hitler and Stalin used as an opiate. Ferdinand and Isabella, back at the end of the 15th century in Spain, sought to enforce "unity" and destroyed a great empire.

Unity, in effect, means a total acknowledgment that free opinion is a vice. One accepts the dicta of those who rule, and kowtows to the superiority of the slogan over the debate.

Unfortunately for General Eisenhower's reputation, the mechanics of his campaign tried to achieve unity within the Republican Party by the blitz method. One argument tried on me was that Taft, by insisting upon running, was impairing the unity of the Republican Party. At the time this argument was presented, to it was added the horrifying prediction that if Taft did not withdraw, Truman would be elected.

I could not help asking why is it not equally true that because General Eisenhower insists upon running, he is preventing the ectoplasm of unity from enveloping Taft. After all, Taft is a Republican by registration, by voting record and by leadership in the party for many years, whereas Eisenhower is a newcomer whose assertion of party affiliation was never accompanied by a promise of party loyalty.

Actually, it is best for a political party when there are many candidates and a big fight. The more candidates, the wilder the fight, the better the opportunity of the people to assert themselves. Why suppress anyone who believes himself suited for the Presidency?

Harold Stassen, for instance, believes that he is suited to be President of the United States. In 1948, he developed an enormous following, particularly among young people, so that he was the most popular man at the Republican convention.

In 1952, Stassen's day had passed. His own state, Minnesota, gave Eisenhower such a write-in vote as to contest Stassen's leadership; in Wisconsin, he was snowed under altogether. These are his states, and having lost them, he has no position of leadership left.

Harold Stassen, on the basis of his 1948 reputation, was entitled to run in this year's primaries. He tested his strength and found it inadequate. He can now seek the attorney general's office, although I am sure that he would prefer to be secretary of state. Even for these jobs, his political claims are inadequate. Neither Taft nor Eisenhower needs him.

The case of Governor Warren is different. He came into the Wisconsin Republican primary and established that he can get a large Democratic vote. How much of that vote was for Eisenhower and how much for Warren will never be known, but politically it is a Warren credit and places him in position to be a candidate for vice-president, an alternative candidate for President in the event of a deadlock, or a member of the cabinet should a Republican be elected.

The large write-in votes in several states may ultimately destroy the institution of the primary because it alters its nature from a party operation to a general election. It also puts upon the party the pressure of money corruption in the primaries, which will sooner or later be exposed to every candidate's detriment. A way will be found to uncover the unbelievably huge expenditures in these primaries, most of which are indirect and secret. The day will come when the cost of this operation will become a public scandal. Every write-in is an organized, directed effort like the advertising scheme of using box-tops.

In fact, one of the reasons that there are so few candidates in a country so rich in suitable personalities is that it costs too much to run. The candidate has to become a beggar among the rich or the labor unions and he may, if he is spineless, become their slave.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

Some years ago I was commissioned by the government to make a physical examination of the boys in a reform school. Although my work consisted of examining the entire body—eyes, hearing, lungs, heart and other organs—I took time to talk to the boys and ask about their home life. I learned that the majority of the boys came from homes broken by death, desertion or divorce. Another fact I learned was that when the mother died first, delinquency occurred sooner.

Our research workers in juvenile delinquency state that the period before the child starts school, ages 3 and 4, is the critical age.

Who is responsible for juvenile delinquency? In Postgraduate Medicine, Dr. Nathan Blackman discusses the various persons or agencies which have much to do with this problem. He states that schoolteachers and the community as a whole have some responsibility for juvenile delinquency.

"The modern concept of motivation of antisocial behavior must not remain the special responsibility of any one professional discipline. It ought to be shared and become a part of the consciousness of every intelligent adult, so that the prevention as well as the handling of wayward youth becomes a part of everyone's responsibility and not alone the responsibility of the authorities who handle the problem from the legal standpoint."

A cause of delinquency may be a physical defect—cross eye, poor eyesight, a loss of hearing. The youth may develop an inferiority complex or may try to make up for the physical defect by "lashing out" at those who are normal. However, the greatest blame, states Dr. Blackman, rests with the parents. "The growing child is raised with a sense of isolation, an apprehension and tension which stem or arise from the emotional aloofness shown by immature parents. The thought then is for parents to go closely into the matter of school reports, make sure that physical defects are corrected insofar as it is possible and see that the youngster plays and mixes with others, thus learning to take his own part and respect the rights of others."

Washington — Inside story of how the steel wage talks got fouled up would have been a comedy of errors if it had not been so crucial to the country. A better name might be a tragedy of errors.

After it was all over, Eric Johnston, former economic stabilizer, asked Nate Feinsinger, head of the Wage Stabilization Board: "What happened to the coordination we used to have down there? You and I used to confer on the telephone every day, and when you had a tough wage dispute I used to come down and sit with your board and explain why wages couldn't be increased because we couldn't increase prices."

The wage board chairman replied that he had been in touch with both his chiefs, Mobilizer Wilson and Economic Stabilizer Putnam, in advance of the wage decision. Technically this was true. Actually their coordination was woefully haphazard, as indicated by the following inside story.

When Charles E. Wilson served in Washington during World War 2, he realized the futility of having wages, prices, production, and bank credits all regulated by independent agencies. So, when he came back to Washington after Korea, he told Truman that, to check inflation you had to put all under one man. Truman agreed. Thus Wilson became the most powerful man in Washington. This power to check inflation was well correlated under Stabilizer Johnston. But when he bowed out, here is the tragic story of what happened in regard to steel.

The Steel Story

Actually, Wilson, Wage Chairman Feinsinger, and new Economic Stabilizer Putnam had agreed in advance that steelworkers were entitled to a total 16-cent package increase including holidays and fringe benefits. Union leaders knew this, which was why one top CIO leader, on hearing that the wage board reported a 26-cent hourly package, remarked:

"That's not a package. That's a carload!"

The day before this 26-cent recommendation was announced by the Wage Board, Wilson, Feinsinger and Putnam had met, and Feinsinger had reported it would be a 27-cent an hour total pay and fringe benefits hike. "It's the best I can do," he reported.

"If it's the best you can do, it's the best you can do," was Wilson's philosophic reply.

At that time there was no consultation with Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall, and apparently no great worry over increasing steel prices.

Next day, chairman Feinsinger persuaded his Wage Board to reduce the package from 27 to 26 cents, and the first results were announced.

Hide-and-Seek in New York

Simultaneously, Ben Fairless, head of the giant U. S. steel corporation, invited Economic Stabilizer Putnam to meet with the Iron and Steel Institute. Putnam went to New York, then suggested that his chief, Mobilizer Wilson, came up to New York also. The situation was somewhat embarrassing, since Putnam was supposed to deal with the steel executives in his office in Washington on an official basis, not informally in New York.

However, Fairless phoned Wilson in Washington, asking him to come to New York, and Wilson took the next plane.

Meanwhile, Putnam told the steel moguls he didn't want to meet with them until Wilson arrived, so he waited elsewhere.

Through a fluke, Wilson got to New York and went to the Iron and Steel meeting direct, without Putnam. His economic stabilizer waited, not knowing his chief had arrived.

And during the session between Wilson and the steel industry, they sold him the idea of increasing the price of steel to compensate for the increase in steel wages.

When Putnam heard about this later, he was sore. Undoubtedly he was sore at being left out of the talks; but, more important, he pointed out that his job was to keep down inflation and that a hike in steel prices would mean hiking the price of almost every other industrial commodity. He said he wanted to take the matter up with President Truman in Key West.

Accordingly, Charlie Wilson phoned Key West, reported back to Putnam that the President wanted to see him, Wilson, not Putnam. This did not make the economic stabilizer any happier.

"Wages Too High"—Truman

However, Wilson flew to Key West, where the first thing Truman told him was: "This wage increase is too high." Acting on this, Wilson later announced that the wage increase was too high, whereupon CIO Chief Phil Murray, in a rage, refused to meet with Wilson, instead phoned Key West, according to associates practically "jumping down the President's throat."

A few days later, the President came back to Washington.

In the interim, the following snarled-up events had happened: 1) Wilson had told the steel industry privately that the wage increase was too high, while telling the public that a wage increase must be tied to a price increase; 2) His irate stabilizer, Roger Putnam, had got his back up against any price increase at all; and 3) His price chief, Ellis Arnall, who had scarcely been consulted, was equally, if not more, opposed to a price increase.

Faced with this, the President called in all three gentlemen, plus his assistant, John Steelman. As they entered the room, he gave Wilson a nasty look and remarked:

"I thought you were a poker player."

The President then proceeded to bawl his defense mobilizer out for having let the steel industry know he would increase prices without bargaining first. He also told Wilson to call in the steel companies and reverse himself—persuade them to take a wage hike without a price hike.

Red in the face, Wilson said: "I'm not going to do it."

It was about as flat a statement as you make to a President of the United States. Later that day, Wilson resigned.

Sudden Peace Would Shake War-Geared Economy of Nation; No Plans Ready for Shift

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—With all the campaign speeches and all the voluminous reports from committees of Congress on economic subjects, not a single proposal or plan has been developed by the administration or its opponents to deal with the situation that might arise in the event of a "sudden peace."

There are signs on the horizon that Communist Russia wants to ease the tension. This will not, of course, cause any immediate alteration in American or Allied policy, but there is always the possibility that a sudden upset inside the Iron Curtain countries may produce such a crisis as to make it seem certain that tension is going to be removed for a long period of time from the international scene.

In military strategy, the persons responsible for planning customarily take into account every contingency and prepare as best they can to meet it.

In economic strategy, the same kind of preparation is necessary, but curiously enough nothing has been done on the subject by any responsible body in either the executive or the legislative branch of the government.

If Stalin were overthrown, or some substantial segment of the Communist bloc revolted, the immediate effect on the American economy would be one of shock and perhaps panic in the markets. The American economy is underpinned today by defense orders. Contracts would be canceled by the billions.

Profits are taxed today to such an extent that American businesses have just about thirty cents left out of the profit dollar — not enough to build the reserves needed to cushion such a shock. It will not be possible to reduce wage levels overnight and many companies would be forced to the wall.

The present situation is far more dangerous than any which existed during World War 2. Congress knew that the end of the war would bring a deflation of war orders. So the program was tapered off as slowly as possible between V-E Day and V-J Day. The companies which were released for conversion of their plants to civilian production were given several months' warning and the benefit of a refund of tax payments. It was fixed by law long before the end of the war was in sight.

This system of refunds—permitting, for example, 1946 losses to be put up against 1945 profits, and allowing for tax refunds—saved America from an economic catastrophe in the post-war period. It prevented widespread unemployment and gave the American economic system a chance to adjust itself to new conditions of so-called peace time.

But no such refunds—based on subtracting current losses from the profits of the two preceding years—are provided for in any law now. There are limited carrybacks for one year and a provision for credits in future years, but this does not furnish working capital at once or keep companies from going into receivership. The relief will not be enough because much of the excess-profits-tax payments will not be recoverable. The whole problem needs study and legislation.

Perhaps the most serious phase of the matter today is the fact that payments of corporation taxes nowadays are being accelerated so that the entire year's tax payments are not deferred till the next calendar year, as used to be the case. This very lag in the schedule of payments was what enabled many a company in 1946 to readjust itself financially even before the refunds became available. For the legal procedures on refunds can sometimes be lengthy and, in the mean time, companies find them selves without adequate working capital to continue operations. Banks are reluctant to lend in anticipation of refund payments by the government because there are many technical points and risks involved in such cases.

Entirely apart from the problem of using refunds from excess-profits-tax payments as a means of supplying pools of capital for business, no plan has been worked out for immediate launching of public-works programs that have been deferred because of the Korean War emergency. Unless a program for such construction proectjs were ready for instant operation, there would be valuable time lost in drawing up such plans. The steel industry would certainly suffer if its 120,000,000-ton capacity became a glut.

Moscow cannot convince America overnight that its intentions are sincere, but a series of deeds might be persuasive. Certainly a revolt inside Russia would precipitate such a deflationary cycle in this country that the damage would be greater than any post-war readjustment in past history.

It is strange how indifferent the American government is to "sudden peace" and how preoccupied most everybody here is with the idea of inevitable war or, at least prolonged tension. It would be a wonderful thing for the whole world if an era of peace were ushered in even if the economic consequences were bad. There is no reason, however, why careful planning by government and industry and labor cannot cushion the shock of "sudden peace."

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

I never knew that the Warner family story could bring about so much interest from so many directions. For instance one reader was able to tell me that a Pete B. Warner and his wife Mary joined the Wurts Street Baptist Church, corner Spring street, "by letter" from Gloversville, Feb. 1, 1877. They had a daughter, Mary, who was baptized April 17, 1887. Peter was in the harness business. There was also a Daniel Warner of the same church who joined by Baptism April 6, 1879. There is no record showing that they were related. Church records are important, first because as a rule they are accurate and written and kept by sincere people. Most of our early records were preserved because of the ministers and church books and records. I certainly appreciate folks looking in old church records to find information for other readers of this column.

In the question asked by Myrtice A. Blatchly of the New York State Museum of Albany Elmer P. Goetz of 21 Stanley street, brought an interesting book. It is called "Historical Sketches of Hudson, N. Y. Emcity, churches, press, schools, libraries, etc., dated 1862." It was written by Stephen B. Miller. There is a chaper on "Ferry". It reads in part: "July 26, 1785, B. Folger, T. Jenks and Ezra Reed were the committee appointed to regulate and rent the ferry. After the canoe had given way to a boat 20 feet long and very narrow and sharp at both ends. In order to carry teams across, the horses were placed one at each end of the boat and timbers laid across it, upon which the wagon rested. The ferry did not pass fully into the control of the city until 1790. At the time the boat described gave way to the boat with sails, so constructed that teams could enter from either end. Some of the following regulations were established: "For every single person, except sucking child 1s.6d. Man, horse, ox, cow, 1s.6d. Loaded wagon or ox cart, 2s.6d. Empty wagon or cartt 1s.6d. Dead sheep or lambs 3d. Live sheep or lamb 4d. Barrel of run, sugar and molasses, 6d. Pail of butter, 1 penny, firkin or tub, 2d. Bushel of wheat, peas or grain 1 penny."

They further stated: One half more was charged when "Ferry was compelled on account of low water to go around the flats. Before sunrise and in the evening, the ferryman was entitled to double rates. He was to keep two scows, with four able hands each, and to run constantly from sunrise to sunset, wind and weather permitting, or forfeit 20 shillings for every neglect. On the arrival of the boat at Loonenburgh landing, it was the duty of some one of the ferrymen to blow a shell or trumpet, in order to give immediate notice of such arrival, and to remain there 15 minutes." There is no mention of a rope ferry.

"The use of scows continued until spring of 1816, when they gave place to the horse-boat, which was built by William Johnson, at the cost of $6,000." They do not say the year the steamboat ferry came to being at Hudson, but it seems it was before 1862 when the book was written. They mention City Ordinances of 1785. One reads: "Storekeepers were prohibited from throwing glass in the streets, boys from swimming near the ferry landing. Men were not allowed to chop wood on Main street "with an axe", etc.

Amalgamated Is Against Raise as Slump Hits Trade

New York, April 7 (AP)—The CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers, acknowledging a slump in the men's clothing industry, has decided not to seek a pay boost now for 150,000 of its members.

The United States Clothing Manufacturers Association announced last night the union has agreed to extend currently expiring contracts until Sept. 15.

The association's president, Raymond H. Reiss, said he was notified of the decision in a letter from Jacob S. Potofsky, Amalgamated president, dated Feb. 21.

The decision regarding the association may set a pattern for Amalgamated's 375,000 members in all branches of the men's clothing industry. The union has not staged a major strike in 30 years.

The union obtained a 12½ cents an hour raise in November, 1950, its first wage hike in three years. Present wages average $1.62½ an hour.

One Red With Humor

Tokyo, April 7 (AP)—It took a long time, but they've finally found a Communist with a sense of humor. The French volunteer battalion in Korea tells this story: A French patrol, moving through a Korean village in No-Man's-Land, saw a suspicious-looking gourd. Closer inspection revealed a time fuse in one side and a release ring in the other. An ordnance man, handling it like robin's eggs, made sure there was no explosive inside and cautiously pulled the ring. Out popped a piece of paper scribbled "Boum!" Underneath in orange crayon, were the French words "Coucou me voila! Bonjour de Mao Tse Tsung!" In English, that's "Boo! Here I am! Greetings from Mao Tse Tsung!"

Queen Juliana Receives Welcome

proud that the heritage of such a people is our own in Kingston."

The mayor declared that in the present time of crisis "Our people and your people are guarding the same ramparts . . ." and that Juliana's visit was "a symbol of unity in liberty of strength in diligence, and of courage in faith. . . ."

Wishes City Prosperity

He then introduced the Queen who spoke slowly, measuring her words, evidently moved by the occasion and realizing that before her in the audience were many whose forebears sailed from the land of tulips and windmills to help wrest a nation from the American wilderness.

"I can't tell you how glad I am to be here with you today," she said. Then turning to the mayor, she thanked him for "his warm welcome and sympathetic words."

She said she understood that on one of Kingston's "houses" there was an inscription in Dutch, "Peace on Earth," and that "It is a wonderful thing. We all want it and we will win that peace, I am sure. . . . I wish you all the best in the world and many more hundreds of years of prosperity and happiness."

The Queen had sat very seriously through the Newkirk speech, listening intently. As she began speaking a baby began to cry and a news photographer dropped a handful of flash bulbs that scattered over the floor beneath the rostrum. A small group of photographers and newsmen standing near the stage whispered to each other in Dutch. The smash and splintering of flash bulbs rose as they were trampled under foot by photographers seeking to get close-ups of the Queen.

The Queen was introduced to two 17-year-old Kingston High School students who spent last summer abroad as exchange students, guests of typical Dutch families. They were Beatrice Newkirk, daughter of the Mayor, and Cynthia Steketee.

Places Wreath at Statue

Leaving the auditorium, the official party drove past waving crowds up Broadway and under the still incomplete railroad underpass and to Academy Green, where in 1658 Peter Stuyvesant executed a treaty with the bellicose Indians. Here, assisted by Lieutenant Commander Johannes G. Stegman of the Netherlands Navy, Queen Juliana placed a huge floral wreath at the foot of a heroic bronze statue of Stuyvesant.

The Queen stepped back and gazed silently at the statue, then turned to talk with Mayor Newkirk. (The mayor said later that the Queen remarked about the beauty of the statues of Stuyvesant, Henry Hudson and George Clinton, all three of which were the work of John Massey Rhind and were donated to the city by Mrs. Emily C. Chadbourne of Stone Ridge.)

Stepping back in their automobiles, the official party—led by a Kingston Police Department car and four state police cars—proceeded up Clinton avenue past the Old Senate House, doubled back on Fair street and parked on Main street in front of the Old First Dutch Church.

Visits Dutch Church

Entering the church between rows of armed National Guardsmen, the Queen was met by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor, and members of the consistory. Just outside the church door was a group of Dutch costumed children, direct descendents of early Dutch settlers.

"Not since 1782, when the father of our country, George Washington, visited us, have we been so graciously honored," the Rev. Mr. Oudemool said to Queen Juliana.

Reviewing the history of the local church, officially named the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church but affectionately known as the Old Dutch Church, Mr. Oudemool said, "We have always treasured our kinship with The Netherlands. . . . Your presence with us today emphasizes for present and future generations the primary importance of spiritual values in the lives of individuals and nations. Acknowledgment of the sovereignty of God, our Father, and Christian service to all men, our brothers, will bring our world to an enduring peace and lasting prosperity."

The church has held continuous services in five buildings since its organization in 1659.

Signs

The Queen then signed a specially illuminated page in the church's book of remembrance. The page was inscribed, "This page is dedicated to commemorate the visit of Her Majesty, the Queen of The Netherlands, on the occasion of the 300th Anniversary of the founding of the City of Kingston, and in the 293rd year of the establishment of this Church."

Security regulations kept the public from entering the church, but outside, on Main street, thousands lined the street and others watched from every available window.

Back in their automobiles, the Queen and her party drove over Wall street, to North Front street, then to Washington avenue and out Hurley avenue.

Dressed in Costumes

At Hurley, like Kingston gaily decorated with Dutch and American flags and bunting, the cavalcade slowed as the Queen waved to spectators, some of them in Dutch costume. The scene was repeated in each village along the Queen's itinerary, which included Stone Ridge, High Falls, Rosendale and New Paltz.

Queen in New York

New York, April 7 (AP)—Queen Juliana of The Netherlands arrived today for a formal ticker tape welcome from the city which grew from the Dutch settlement, Nieuw Amsterdam.

The Queen drove down from Hyde Park, N. Y. where she was a weekend guest of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Her car was 40 minutes late in reaching the city line in the Bronx, where she was met by her husband, Prince Bernhard, city officials and a police escort.

Before entering the car, Grover Whalen, chairman of the Mayor's reception committee, shook hands with the Queen through an open rear window. He leaned forward and said "We have to hurry; we're behind schedule."

A small group of photographers and newsmen standing near the stage whispered to each other in Dutch. The smash and splintering of flash bulbs rose as they were trampled under foot by photographers seeking to get close-ups of the Queen.

The Queen was introduced to two 17-year-old Kingston High School students who spent last summer abroad as exchange students, guests of typical Dutch families. They were Beatrice Newkirk, daughter of the Mayor, and Cynthia Steketee.

Places Wreath at Statue

Leaving the auditorium, the official party drove past waving crowds up Broadway and under the still incomplete railroad underpass and to Academy Green, where in 1658 Peter Stuyvesant executed a treaty with the bellicose Indians. Here, assisted by Lieutenant Commander Johannes G. Stegman of the Netherlands Navy, Queen Juliana placed a huge floral wreath at the foot of a heroic bronze statue of Stuyvesant.

The Queen stepped back and gazed silently at the statue, then turned to talk with Mayor Newkirk. (The mayor said later that the Queen remarked about the beauty of the statues of Stuyvesant, Henry Hudson and George Clinton, all three of which were the work of John Massey Rhind and were donated to the city by Mrs. Emily C. Chadbourne of Stone Ridge.)

Stepping back in their automobiles, the official party—led by a Kingston Police Department car and four state police cars—proceeded up Clinton avenue past the Old Senate House [illegible] back on Fair street and parked on Main street in front of the Old First Dutch Church.

Visits Dutch Church

Entering the church between rows of armed National Guardsmen, the Queen was met by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor, and members of the consistory. Just outside the church door was a group of Dutch costumed children, direct descendents of early Dutch settlers.

"Not since 1782, when the father of our country, George Washington, visited us, have we been so graciously honored," the Rev. Mr. Oudemool said to Queen Juliana.

Reviewing the history of the local church, officially named the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church but affectionately known as the Old Dutch Church, Mr. Oudemool said, "We have always treasured our kinship with The Netherlands. . . . Your presence with us today emphasizes for present and future generations the primary importance of spiritual values in the lives of individuals and nations. Acknowledgment of the sovereignty of God, our Father, and Christian service to all men, our brothers, will bring our world to an enduring peace and lasting prosperity."

The church has held continuous services in five buildings since its organization in 1659.

Signs

The Queen then signed a specially illuminated page in the church's book of remembrance. The page was inscribed, "This page is dedicated to commemorate the visit of Her Majesty, the Queen of The Netherlands, on the occasion of the 300th Anniversary of the founding of the City of Kingston, and in the 293rd year of the establishment of this Church."

Security regulations kept the public from entering the church, but outside, on Main street, thousands lined the street and others watched from every available window.

Back in their automobiles, the Queen and her party drove over Wall street, to North Front street, then to Washington avenue and out Hurley avenue.

Dressed in Costumes

At Hurley, like Kingston gaily decorated with Dutch and American flags and bunting, the cavalcade slowed as the Queen waved to spectators, some of them in Dutch costume. The scene was repeated in each village along the Queen's itinerary, which included Stone Ridge, High Falls, Rosendale and New Paltz.

Queen in New York

New York, April 7 (AP)—Queen Juliana of The Netherlands arrived today for a formal ticker tape welcome from the city which grew from the Dutch settlement, Nieuw Amsterdam.

The Queen drove down from Hyde Park, N. Y. where she was a weekend guest of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Her car was 40 minutes late in reaching the city line in the Bronx, where she was met by her husband, Prince Bernhard, city officials and a police escort.

Before entering the car, Grover Whalen, chairman of the Mayor's reception committee, shook hands with the Queen through an open rear window. He leaned forward and said "We have to hurry; we're behind schedule."

More than 300 men attended the Protestant men's communion service Sunday morning at the Old First Dutch Reformed Church and the breakfast which followed. The services were conducted by the Rev. William J. McVey of the First Presbyterian Church and the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor of the church.

KVA Names Coles; Schedules Plans For Memorial Day

Election of new officers and tentative plans for the annual observance of Memorial Day highlighted the recent meeting of the Kingston Veteran's Association.

Roswell Coles of Colonial Camp, 75, United Spanish War Veterans, was elected chairman.

Other officers included Technical Sergeant Charles Awkerman, local marine recruiter, vice-chairman; James M. Krom, Tappan Camp, 1, Sons of Union Veterans, secretary-treasurer.

Members of the executive committee include Sgt. Awkerman, chairman; James Howard, Company M, Veteran's Association; Howard Shurter, Joyce-Schirick Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Roy Jacobs, Kingston Post, 150, American Legion; and James G. Krom, Tappan Camp, Sons of Union Veterans.

This year's memorial service honoring the heroic dead who died at sea was given to Auxiliary 53, of Tappan Camp. The service will be held Sunday afternoon, May 25, at a place to be announced.

Mayone Parade Head

With the 1952 parade arrangements being headed by Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League, John R. Mayone of that organization has been named parade chairman.

Mayone already is busily engaged in scheduling his musical organizations, veteran and civic units who desire to participate in making this year's parade during the city's 300th anniversary a historic one in the annals of the veteran groups.

Due to uncertain weather conditions, it has been decided by the KVA to hold the annual memorial service at the municipal auditorium immediately after the parade. James M. Krom, of Tappan Camp, Sons of Union Veterans, was named chairman of this service.

Dr. Poling May Speak

According to present plans, the KVA hopes to have the Rev. Dr. Daniel Poling of Philadelphia as the guest speaker.

A spokesman of the KVA said today that it is the hope of the organization that all residents, veteran and civic groups will cooperate in making the 1952 Memorial Day observance a truly dedication day for the heroic dead of all wars.

This plea was made with the announcement that since Memorial Day of 1951 40 veterans of various world conflicts have died and are buried in the various cemeteries of the city.

The KVA comprises such organizations as Colonial Camp, 75, United Spanish War Veterans; Joyce-Schirick Post, 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Kingston Post, 150, American Legion; Tappan Camp 1, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War; Company M, Veterans Association and Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League.

A BOY AT CALVARY

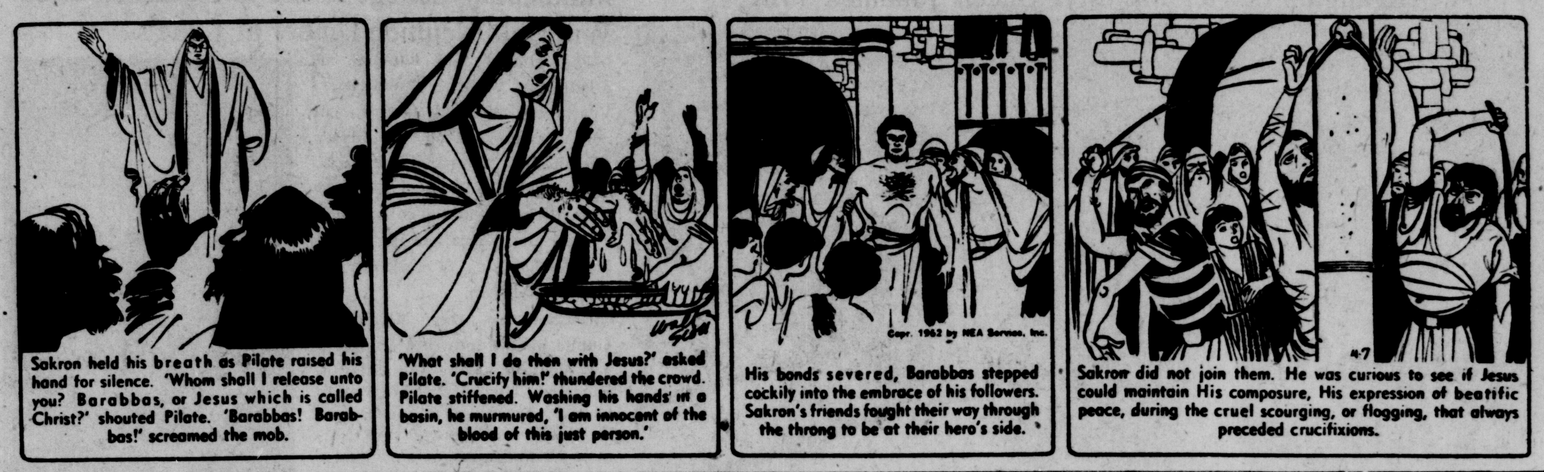
By Jay Heavilin and Walt Scott



Sakron held his breath as Pilate raised his hand for silence. 'Whom shall I release unto you? Barabbas, or Jesus which is called Christ?' shouted Pilate. 'Barabbas! Barabbas!' screamed the mob.

'What shall I do then with Jesus?' asked Pilate. 'Crucify him!' thundered the crowd. Pilate stiffened. Washing his hands in a basin, he murmured, 'I am innocent of the blood of this just person.'

Copr. 1952 by NEA Service, Inc.

His bonds severed, Barabbas stepped cockily into the embrace of his followers. Sakron's friends fought their way through the throng to be at their hero's side.

Sakron did not join them. He was curious to see if Jesus could maintain His composure, His expression of beatific peace, during the cruel scourging, or flogging, that always preceded crucifixions.

Spring is bringing with it a lot of activity for the Kingston High School A Cappella Choir with three full-length concerts and a number of smaller engagements on the agenda.

The first appearance will be at the opening of the Community Concert Drive at the Governor Clinton Hotel Sunday, April 20, and, on Wednesday of that week, the Rotary Club convention will be entertained by a group from the choir.

The first full concert will be given for the Hudson Valley Chamber Music Circle in Rhinebeck in the new high school auditorium Sunday, April 27. This will be the final concert in a series sponsored by the organization which is composed of seven or eight Dutchess county towns.

The annual choir concert has been set for May 9 and 10 and details on this and other smaller engagements will be available in the near future.

May Day Homecoming

This year May Day will be celebrated with several new features added to the program. Among the highlights is the special homecoming day to be observed for former graduates of Kingston Academy, Ulster Academy, and KHS.

Maroon Pictures

Pictures for the 1952 Maroon are now being taken on the front steps of KHS. Tuesday marked the opening day with pictures of the following clubs taken: Future Nurses of America, Discussion, Library helpers and Dental Assistants.

Pictures will continue to be taken and all students are advised to watch the bulletin so that they will not be passed up when their turn comes.

Kingston will play a 10-game schedule, with five set for the municipal stadium.

Management Talk Slated on Sunday For Century Club

New Paltz, April 5—The Case for Management will be given by Larry F. Livingston, manager of the Dupont-Nemours Company extension division of Bloomington, Del., at a meeting of the Century Club in the Reformed Church Sunday night.

Widely known as a speaker on industrial progress and chemical development, Livingston will show the group the newest developments in the field of chemical research.

Equipped with such illustrative material as nylon rope, neoprene, cellulose sponge, acetate plastic and many other results of recent research, Livingston will discuss what makes them possible and how they get out of the test tube and into the hands of the public as useful products.

An engineering graduate of the University of Washington, Livingston has been a member of the faculty at the University of Wisconsin and the director of agricultural engineering extension work at Michigan State College. He is an authority on the use of explosives in agriculture and a country-wide lecturer in the field of chemical development in industry.

He recently spoke in Kingston at a meeting of the Hurley Chamber of Commerce.

Campus Carnival Attracts Throng

New Paltz, April 5—About 1,600 persons thronged into the Campus Elementary School last Friday night where children and teachers, with the aid of many parents, had transformed the school into a carnival site, complete with side shows, exhibits and refreshment booths.

Sponsored by the Parent Faculty organization under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Van Valkenburgh, carnival chairman, the event was provided as an opportunity for parents to re-acquaint themselves with the teachers, the school and its facilities.

"In that respect, as well as in others, the event was an overwhelming success," Mrs. Van Valkenburgh reported. "In addition to the special carnival events, work that the children are doing was exhibited in many of the rooms. Parents who rarely have a chance to visit the school met the teachers and were amazed by the interesting work done by their children in the classrooms."

To Benefit Children

Although the event was not planned on a profit-making scale, about $100 was realized after expenses were paid. Mrs. Keith Smiley, president of the Parent Faculty organization, announced that the proceeds would be used for the children in some beneficial way.

Puppet shows, plays, a merry-go-round, an acrobatic show, side shows, and hot dog and balloon stands were among the many features of the carnival.

An unusual feature was the seventh grade public opinion poll. Students prepared ballot boxes in which visitors were invited to cast their preferences for president of the United States, and their opinions on 18 questions. Minimum age requirement for voting was 11 years.

When the ballot boxes were opened by the class Monday morning, the following results were noted.

Poll Favors Ike

Resnlts on the questions on a percentage basis were as follows:

Mayone Parade Head

With the 1952 parade arrangements being headed by Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League, John R. Mayone of that organization has been named parade chairman.

Mayone already is busily engaged in scheduling his musical organizations, veteran and civic units who desire to participate in making this year's parade during the city's 300th anniversary a historic one in the annals of the veteran groups.

Due to uncertain weather conditions, it has been decided by the KVA to hold the annual memorial service at the municipal auditorium immediately after the parade. James M. Krom, of Tappan Camp, Sons of Union Veterans, was named chairman of this service.

Dr. Poling May Speak

According to present plans, the KVA hopes to have the Rev. Dr. Daniel Poling of Philadelphia as the guest speaker.

A spokesman of the KVA said today that it is the hope of the organization that all residents, veteran and civic groups will cooperate in making the 1952 Memorial Day observance a truly dedication day for the heroic dead of all wars.

This plea was made with the announcement that since Memorial Day of 1951 40 veterans of various world conflicts have died and are buried in the various cemeteries of the city.

The KVA comprises such organizations as Colonial Camp, 75, United Spanish War Veterans; Joyce-Schirick Post, 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Kingston Post, 150, American Legion; Tappan Camp 1, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War; Company M, Veterans Association and Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League.

Entertain With Dances

Ruth Paley, on vacation from Smith College, and her sister, Marni, a junior at Kingston High School, entertained Miss Barnett's World Literature class with a series of folk dances Tuesday. The dances, which were of Russian, English and Scandinavian origin, proved interesting and entertaining.

Choir Plans Concerts

Spring is bringing with it a lot of activity for the Kingston High School A Cappella Choir with three full-length concerts and a number of smaller engagements on the agenda.

The first appearance will be at the opening of the Community Concert Drive at the Governor Clinton Hotel Sunday, April 20, and, on Wednesday of that week, the Rotary Club convention will be entertained by a group from the choir.

The first full concert will be given for the Hudson Valley Chamber Music Circle in Rhinebeck in the new high school auditorium Sunday, April 27. This will be the final concert in a series sponsored by the organization which is composed of seven or eight Dutchess county towns.

The annual choir concert has been set for May 9 and 10 and details on this and other smaller engagements will be available in the near future.

Management Talk Slated on Sunday For Century Club

New Paltz, April 5—The Case for Management will be given by Larry F. Livingston, manager of the Dupont-Nemours Company extension division of Bloomington, Del., at a meeting of the Century Club in the Reformed Church Sunday night.

Widely known as a speaker on industrial progress and chemical development, Livingston will show the group the newest developments in the field of chemical research.

Equipped with such illustrative material as nylon rope, neoprene, cellulose sponge, acetate plastic and many other results of recent research, Livingston will discuss what makes them possible and how they get out of the test tube and into the hands of the public as useful products.

An engineering graduate of the University of Washington, Livingston has been a member of the faculty at the University of Wisconsin and the director of agricultural engineering extension work at Michigan State College. He is an authority on the use of explosives in agriculture and a country-wide lecturer in the field of chemical development in industry.

He recently spoke in Kingston at a meeting of the Hurley Chamber of Commerce.

Campus Carnival Attracts Throng

New Paltz, April 5—About 1,600 persons thronged into the Campus Elementary School last Friday night where children and teachers, with the aid of many parents, had transformed the school into a carnival site, complete with side shows, exhibits and refreshment booths.

Sponsored by the Parent Faculty organization under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Van Valkenburgh, carnival chairman, the event was provided as an opportunity for parents to re-acquaint themselves with the teachers, the school and its facilities.

"In that respect, as well as in others, the event was an overwhelming success," Mrs. Van Valkenburgh reported. "In addition to the special carnival events, work that the children are doing was exhibited in many of the rooms. Parents who rarely have a chance to visit the school met the teachers and were amazed by the interesting work done by their children in the classrooms."

To Benefit Children

Although the event was not planned on a profit-making scale, about $100 was realized after expenses were paid. Mrs. Keith Smiley, president of the Parent Faculty organization, announced that the proceeds would be used for the children in some beneficial way.

Puppet shows, plays, a merry-go-round, an acrobatic show, side shows, and hot dog and balloon stands were among the many features of the carnival.

An unusual feature was the seventh grade public opinion poll. Students prepared ballot boxes in which visitors were invited to cast their preferences for president of the United States, and their opinions on 18 questions. Minimum age requirement for voting was 11 years.

Highlights of Her Majesty, Queen Juliana's Visit

Following an official welcome to the city by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk at the municipal auditorium Saturday afternoon, Her Majesty, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands proceeded to Academy Green and the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of Kingston.

At the feet of the statue of Peter Stuyvesant on Academy Green, Queen Juliana, (lower photo) assisted by Lieutenant Commander Johannes G. Stegran of the Netherlands Navy, laid a large wreath of pink tulips, blue iris and daffodils, tied with the red, white and blue of the Dutch flag with N and B inscribed on it in gold.

The Queen then visited the Old Dutch Church, where she was received by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor, and members of the Consistory. In the processional, upper photo, Her Majesty, Queen Juliana, the Rev. Mr. Oudemool, Mayor Newkirk, Jan H. van Roijen, the Netherlands Ambassador to the United States, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who greeted the Queen upon her arrival in the city, and Commander Stegran.

For the much heralded and honored visit to this city, Her Majesty wore a gray suitdress, a yellow off-the-face hat draped with chiffon, brown alligator shoes and bag, brown suede gloves and a mink stole. (Freeman photos)

Queen's Visit Is Related in Brief; Rain Through Tour

Queen Juliana's visit to Kingston on Saturday, like any major event, had its by-products of human interest stories and related incidents often overlooked. Here are a few:

If he saved it, the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool has an unexpected memento of the Queen's visit to the Old First Dutch Church. In making preparations, someone had the foresight to secrete a piece of scrap paper under the book of remembrance. Befor passing the pen to the Queen, Dominie Oudemool tested it on the scrap paper to make sure it was working. But when Queen Juliana took up the pen, it apparently did not work properly, for the Queen quickly grabbed the scrap paper and made her own "scratchings" on it before signing the beautifully prepared page of the book.

At 2:15 p. m., Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk approached the microphone at the municipal auditorium. Speaking slowly, measuring his words, he announced, "Ladies, and Gentlemen, Her Majesty, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands ..." An expectant hush fell over the crowd. Then the mayor continued, "...has just passed through Highland."

Although several thousand persons saw the Queen here in person, hundreds of thousands more were able to hear or read the news of her visit through the efforts of about 50 men and women who were here as members of "the press"—including newspaper writers, photographers, radio announcers and technicians. The events were transmitted to the wire services, area and metropolitan press, were broadcast over several radio stations and were even cabled through the State Department's overseas information coverage to Holland. Among the newsmen were a number of Dutch journalists on the Royal Netherlands Press visit to this country.

WGY Announcer Busy

No one envied the announcer for one radio station (WGY), who did not have the benefit of "fill in" from the studio while he awaited the arrival of the Queen's party. He began talking at 2 p. m.—and was still talking when Her Majesty arrived 45 minutes later. He interviewed everybody within reach, read from background material thoughtfully provided the press by Harry Rigby, Jr., and his committee, and managed to keep a steady stream of commentary going.

Male members of the press corps had difficulty deciding just how to correctly describe the Queen's attire. Consultation with several of the women reporters ended with this agreed description: a light gray suit dress, pale yellow off-the-face hat with a bow of starched chiffon, brown alligator shoes and bag, brown suede gloves, and a stole which one reporter said was mink. Mrs. Roosevelt wore a navy dress with fur neckpiece and a navy hat trimmed in white.

Prince Not in Party

Rain followed the Queen wherever she went, Associated Press and other wire reports indicated. At Philadelphia, it was raining. Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands—who did not come to Kingston with his wife, the Queen, but went to West Point—was to have seen a dress parade, but a drenching rain forced its cancellation. After Queen Juliana left Kingston, toured Ulster county and returned to Hyde Park, she left her automobile in a downpour to place a wreath on the grave of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

John Roosevelt, who accompanied his mother to Kingston, announced to the press after his return to Hyde Park that Fala, the late President's famous Scotty, had died.

Mrs. William Jackson Is Named Chairman of YWCA Music Group

Mrs. William Jackson was elected chairman of the Music Appreciation Group of the YWCA at a meeting which took place in the home of Mrs. Arthur J. Laidlaw on Thursday afternoon.

Others selected for the 1952-53 season, included Mrs. Ralph Harper, vice-chairman; Mrs. Frank Gollnick, secretary and Mrs. Hans Decker, treasurer.

The chairman-elect, Mrs. Jackson, announced the program committee as follows, Mrs. Willard Burke, chairman, and Mrs. Mabel Kukuk, Mrs. Henry Millonig, and Mrs. George Ross.

Mrs. Ralph Harper presented a review of the life and works of Frank Liszt who won the appellation of the "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" of music.

The speaker observed that while Liszt was a small frail child, he lived to direct music at the ripe age of 75. Like many another virtuoso, he gave concerts when very young and had completed an opera when but thirteen years old.

He thought of the piano as an instrument to be exploited and, both tonally and technically, in orchestral terms. He developed a method of writing which resulted in a great deal of "showy" music, not truly representative of his artistic stature. In the mid-nineteenth century, he was famous as the great virtuoso.

Typical recorded selections were heard by the group. At the tea which followed the meeting, Mrs. Raymond Craft and Mrs. Helen Ferger were hostesses. Miss Florence Cordts poured.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ward Brigham, 73 Linderman avenue, Thursday, April 17.

Highlights of Her Majesty, Queen Juliana's Visit

Following an official welcome to the city by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk at the municipal auditorium Saturday afternoon, Her Majesty, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands proceeded to Academy Green and the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of Kingston.

At the feet of the statue of Peter Stuyvesant on Academy Green, Queen Juliana, (lower photo) assisted by Lieutenant Commander Johannes G. Stegran of the Netherlands Navy, laid a large wreath of pink tulips, blue iris and daffodils, tied with the red, white and blue of the Dutch flag with N and B inscribed on it in gold.

The Queen then visited the Old Dutch Church, where she was received by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor, and members of the Consistory. In the processional, upper photo, Her Majesty, Queen Juliana, the Rev. Mr. Oudemool, Mayor Newkirk, Jan H. van Roijen, the Netherlands Ambassador to the United States, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who greeted the Queen upon her arrival in the city, and Commander Stegran.

For the much heralded and honored visit to this city, Her Majesty wore a gray suitdress, a yellow off-the-face hat draped with chiffon, brown alligator shoes and bag, brown suede gloves and a mink stole. (Freeman photos)

Queen's Visit Is Related in Brief; Rain Through Tour

Queen Juliana's visit to Kingston on Saturday, like any major event, had its by-products of human interest stories and related incidents often overlooked. Here are a few:

If he saved it, the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool has an unexpected memento of the Queen's visit to the Old First Dutch Church. In making preparations, someone had the foresight to secrete a piece of scrap paper under the book of remembrance. Befor passing the pen to the Queen, Dominie Oudemool tested it on the scrap paper to make sure it was working. But when Queen Juliana took up the pen, it apparently did not work properly, for the Queen quickly grabbed the scrap paper and made her own "scratchings" on it before signing the beautifully prepared page of the book.

At 2:15 p. m., Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk approached the microphone at the municipal auditorium. Speaking slowly, measuring his words, he announced, "Ladies, and Gentlemen, Her Majesty, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands . . ." An expectant hush fell over the crowd. Then the mayor continued, ". . . has just passed through Highland."

Although several thousand persons saw the Queen here in person, hundreds of thousands more were able to hear or read the news of her visit through the efforts of about 50 men and women who were here as members of "the press"—including newspaper writers, photographers, radio announcers and technicians. The events were transmitted to the wire services, area and metropolitan press, were broadcast over several radio stations and were even cabled through the State Department's overseas information coverage to Holland. Among the newsmen were a number of Dutch journalists on the Royal Netherlands Press visit to this country.

WGY Announcer Busy

No one envied the announcer for one radio station (WGY), who did not have the benefit of "fill in" from the studio while he awaited the arrival of the Queen's party. He began talking at 2 p. m.—and was still talking when Her Majesty arrived 45 minutes later. He interviewed everybody within reach, read from background material thoughtfully provided the press by Harry Rigby, Jr., and his committee, and managed to keep a steady stream of commentary going.

Male members of the press corps had difficulty deciding just how to correctly describe the Queen's attire. Consultation with several of the women reporters ended with this agreed description: a light gray suit dress, pale yellow off-the-face hat with a bow of starched chiffon, brown alligator shoes and bag, brown suede gloves, and a stole which one reporter said was mink. Mrs. Roosevelt wore a navy dress with fur neckpiece and a navy hat trimmed in white.

Prince Not in Party

Rain followed the Queen wherever she went, Associated Press and other wire reports indicated. At Philadelphia, it was raining. Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands—who did not come to Kingston with his wife, the Queen, but went to West Point—was to have seen a dress parade, but a drenching rain forced its cancellation. After Queen Juliana left Kingston, toured Ulster county and returned to Hyde Park, she left her automobile in a downpour to place a wreath on the grave of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

John Roosevelt, who accompanied his mother to Kingston, announced to the press after his return to Hyde Park that Fala, the late President's famous Scotty, had died.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of 'Etiquette,' 'Children Are People,' etc.)

CASE OF NEEDLESS DISTRESS

No greater mistake can be made than to let your mode of living be put our of gear by untoward circumstances such as the one described in this letter: "Occasionally, my husband has to work on a Sunday, and when he does, we have our dinner when he comes home which is about four-thirty. Last Sunday (which happened to be my husband's Sunday to work) some friends of ours from a neighboring town drove over to see us after their dinner and stayed the afternoon. When my husband came home, I didn't know what to do about getting dinner since there wasn't enough to ask them to stay and it didn't seem right to leave them sitting in the living room alone while we had our dinner, so we just sat and talked and as a result we didn't have anything to eat until late that evening. Will you please tell me how I could have tactfully handled this situation?"

I think you should have taken the situation naturally and frankly and said, "John and I have dinner at a very strange hour when he has to work and I must go and get it ready now. I am sorry that I can't ask you to join us but it happens that we have very little in the house today. I can gladly offer you a cup of coffee and I'm sorry that this is the best I can do." There's nothing rude about this and I think they would be greatly distressed should they find out that you and your husband went hungry on their account.

Green Ink

Dear Mrs. Post: To settle a dispute, will you please tell me if green ink is in good taste?

Answer: While not accepted as such, there can be a combination of greenish bond paper stamped in green on which green ink can look very well.

Service of Vegetables

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to serve vegetables, such as peas, corn and particularly stewed tomatoes, in individual dishes in a private house? Also is it ever proper to eat these vegetables with a spoon instead of a fork?

Answer: No to the first two but excusable when stewed tomatoes are served.

Is is good taste to use a printed card for acknowledging a personal kindness? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-21, "Model Notes," answers this and many other questions on correspondence. ## Hold Czech Club Owner For American's Death

Sydney, Australia, April 7 (AP)—A Czechoslovak night club owner is charged here with the fatal shooting of an American ship's engineer, Alfred Nils Dahlberg, 35, of Flushing, N. Y.

A preliminary hearing is set for today.

Dahlberg died of stomach wounds in a hospital yesterday. He had been found wounded early Saturday in the apartment of a 27-year-old woman, Kay Biliski. She had been beaten with a rifle and was lying nearby in a semi-conscious state.

Police arrested Miroslav Tuma, 27, and took him to Dahlberg's hospital for a bedside inquiry. Before he died, Dahlberg gasped that he had thrown Tuma out of the woman's apartment at 1 a. m. Tuma came back, Dahlberg said, and "I remember hearing a gun go off * * * I felt as though someone had kicked me in the stomach." Dahlberg was a crewman of the U. S. Lines' freighter Pioneer Isle.

Over ten thousand families in Greater New York saved $500 to $4,000 on their hospital bills last year!

250,000 people had their hospital bills paid for them in full!

Yesterday, over three thousand patients checked into hospitals in Greater New York.

Today, tomorrow, each day of the year, Greater New York hospital doors will swing open for an average of over 3,000 new patients a day. Nearly half of these patients will have their bills paid for them in part or in full by New York's Blue Cross (Associated Hospital Service).

Yes, in 1952 over 1,200,000 people in Greater New York . . . one in every three families . . . will either thank their lucky stars that they have Blue Cross protection . . . or will wish they had it!

Modern hospital care works wonders!

Today's amazing new hospital facilities in operating room and laboratory, plus wonder-working new drugs help ease pain and speed recovery. But such improved hospital care costs more.

In the New York City area, charges for semi-private rooms range up to $20 a day!

Streptomycin, cortisone and other modern medicines cost more than the medicines they replace. New equipment has increased the cost of laboratory and X-ray examinations as well as operating room service.

It's no wonder that with vastly improved care, big hospital bills are the rule rather than the exception. It's no wonder that Blue Cross protection which pays for hospital care, is worth more than ever. The fact is that every increase in hospital costs increases the worth of Blue Cross protection.

Why risk hospital bills?

Wouldn't it worry you to have to raise $500 or more overnight? Could it wreck your savings? Could it put you in debt for months to come? Actually you don't have to take the risk.

You can invest in the kind of protection against hospital bills now enjoyed by more than 5,000,000 members of New York's Blue Cross.

Blue Cross covers IN FULL . . . a wide range of hospital services!

Unlike plans that pay fixed amounts for hospital care, New York's Blue Cross puts no cash limit on a broad range of hospital services—no matter how high the bill. It includes semi-private accommodations and covers the extras—such as drugs, X-rays, and laboratory fees.

Blue Cross is easy to pay for!

Blue Cross rates vary somewhat according to the type of protection you have. However, the cost for any one person is never as much as the price of a subway ride per day . . . and for a family of five, costs are about 3 cents per person per day.

Mass membership, like mass production, gives you the greatest benefits possible at the lowest possible costs. You get more for your Blue Cross subscription dollar, because of special arrangements Blue Cross has with member hospitals.

It's easy for you to join Blue Cross!

You can apply as an individual for non-group enrollment if you are self-employed, unemployed, retired, or work for a company employing fewer than 4 people. However, if your company employs 4 or more, ask your employer to find out how he can make it possible for you to join Blue Cross on the lower cost Group Plan offering more comprehensive benefits.

Your Blue Cross card opens hospital doors without red tape!

As a Blue Cross member, you get into a hospital of your choice without red tape. When you show your Blue Cross card to the admitting clerk, he knows the hospital will be paid. That eliminates embarrassing questions, deposits, etc.

There are NO CLAIMS TO FILE when you leave the hospital. Last year alone, over 250,000 hospitalized members of New York's Blue Cross had their bill for hospital services paid in full. Blue Cross takes care of all bothersome details. It pays the hospital directly.

Blue Shield helps pay doctor bills!

Blue Cross provides hospital care. Blue Shield (United Medical Service) pays substantial amounts to a doctor of your choice on surgical and medical bills.

Just as Blue Cross is sponsored by the public and the hospitals, Blue Shield operates with the endorsement of the medical profession. For more complete protection, add Blue Shield coverage to Blue Cross.

Don't delay! Get the facts now!

Ask your employer! You may be eligible for Blue Cross group membership. Mail the coupon below to get all the facts.

ONLY BLUE CROSS gives you protection like this:

New York's Blue Cross Plan (Associated Hospital Service) provides for a semi-private hospital room, and for a wide range of hospital services, at any one of over 260 participating hospitals.

Blue Cross furnishes FULL COVERAGE of a wide range of hospital services for the first 21 days, after which it gives you an additional 180 days at a 50% discount. 21 days is at least twice as long as the average stay in a hospital.

Blue Cross PROVIDES IN FULL for 21 days for each additional hospital admission for a different ailment.

Blue Cross makes good IN FULL the cost of private room and semi-private room services such as: General nursing care; Meals and special diets; Penicillin, streptomycin and other new wonder-working drugs; Oxygen; X-ray and laboratory services; Dressings and casts, etc.

Blue Cross PROVIDES IN FULL for the same wide range of hospital services for every enrolled member of your family—except for a maximum limit on maternity cases.

In private rooms, Blue Cross makes an allowance toward the cost of the room, and provides IN FULL for a wide range of hospital services.

When you're away from home, Blue Cross makes substantial allowances for hospitalization . . . anywhere in the world.

Mail this coupon NOW!

It may save you weeks of worry . . . hundreds of dollars!

CASE OF NEEDLESS DISTRESS

No greater mistake can be made than to let your mode of living be put our of gear by untoward circumstances such as the one described in this letter: "Occasionally, my husband has to work on a Sunday, and when he does, we have our dinner when he comes home which is about four-thirty. Last Sunday (which happened to be my husband's Sunday to work) some friends of ours from a neighboring town drove over to see us after their dinner and stayed the afternoon. When my husband came home, I didn't know what to do about getting dinner since there wasn't enough to ask them to stay and it didn't seem right to leave them sitting in the living room alone while we had our dinner, so we just sat and talked and as a result we didn't have anything to eat until late that evening. Will you please tell me how I could have tactfully handled this situation?"

I think you should have taken the situation naturally and frankly and said, "John and I have dinner at a very strange hour when he has to work and I must go and get it ready now. I am sorry that I can't ask you to join us but it happens that we have very little in the house today. I can gladly offer you a cup of coffee and I'm sorry that this is the best I can do." There's nothing rude about this and I think they would be greatly distressed should they find out that you and your husband went hungry on their account.

Green Ink

Dear Mrs. Post: To settle a dispute, will you please tell me if green ink is in good taste?

Answer: While not accepted as such, there can be a combination of greenish bond paper stamped in green on which green ink can look very well.

Service of Vegetables

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to serve vegetables, such as peas, corn and particularly stewed tomatoes, in individual dishes in a private house? Also is it ever proper to eat these vegetables with a spoon instead of a fork?

Answer: No to the first two but excusable when stewed tomatoes are served.

Is is good taste to use a printed card for acknowledging a personal kindness? # St. Joseph's CYO Seniors Capture Inter-County Basketball Crown

Return Gorman Trophy Here With 50-46 Victory

Defeat St. Patrick's Five of Newburgh

Andy Juhl and Jack Doyle collaborated to return the Vincent A. Gorman Trophy to Kingston for St. Joseph's Seniors in the inter-county CYO basketball finals, Sunday at Columbus Hall in Newburgh.

Juhl rimmed 19 points and Big Jack holed 15 as the locals turned back St. Patrick's of Newburgh, 50-46, with a blazing last period run.

Ulster county's two other entries didn't fare so well. St. Joseph's Met dropped a 60-50 decision to the Assumption of Maybrook, while St. Joseph's of Middletown tripped St. Mary's of Kingston in the Junior division, 50-36.

No more than five points separated St. Patrick's and St. Joseph's in the Senior finals. The locals trailed 40-36 at the head of the stretch but they quickly regained the lead and held it with a brilliant display of team work in the closing minutes.

Bob Brown paced the losers with 12 points. Jack Finley scored 10 and Jack Fanning hit with 11.

Godwin Sinks 19

John Godwin dropped 19 points, while Don Dempsey and Frank Secreto each had 13 for St. Joseph's Mets. Mike Raimondo dropped 17 and Angelo Coluntano 15 for the winners. Assumption led 30-25 at halftime.

A 24-point splurge by Bill Williams of the Middletown St. Joseph's was the deciding factor in the Junior playoff. James Houghtaling rimmed 15 for Kingston.

Just Shows What A Little Control Can Do for You

Philadelphia — (NEA) — Bud Parmalee might have become one of baseball's greatest pitchers if the strike zone hadn't been such a mystery to him.

Tarzan Parmalee was as wild as moundsmen get.

After a hectic fling in the National League and American Association, he was salvaged by Connie Mack. Bud still couldn't find the plate, and the erstwhile Athletics manager sent him to Louisville.

Mr. Mack received a letter from the problem pitcher a week later. A Louisville box score was enclosed.

Parmalee had walked a dozen batters, hit a couple more, fired two wild pitches, but managed to win, 10-9.

"Just goes to show you," wrote Parmalee, "what a guy can do when he acquires control."

Lakers Wrap Up Western Series

Minneapolis, April 7 (AP)—The Minneapolis Lakers, winners of the Western Division playoff, enjoyed a respite from basketball today before heading into the final playoff in the National Basketball Association race today.

The Lakers turned back the hard-driving Rochester Royals, 82-80, last night to end the Western Division playoff. Jim Pollard's tip-in of the ball after big George Mikan had missed a shot came with but two seconds of the game left. The Lakers had maneuvered for better than two minutes with the score tied at 80-80 before they could set up the shot for Mikan.

The opponent for the Lakers won't be known until the New York Knickerbockers and Syracuse wind up the eastern playoff. New York leads that series, 2-1, after a 99-92 victory Saturday night in a game marked by a riot in the waning seconds. This series will resume tomorrow night in New York.

The victory was worth $3,250 to the Lakers, who captured the best-of-five series in three straight games after losing the first tilt to the Royals.

Bob Davis, ace Royal guard, tipped in 21 points in last night's finale after being held scoreless in the Saturday night game, won by the Lakers, 77-67. Pep Saul and Vern Mikkelsen led the Laker scoring last night with 18 points apiece. Mikan wound up with 16.

Third No-Hitter Stirs Suspicion Rabbit Has Departed From Ball

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Major league hitters are beginning to suspect that some one is sabotaging the official league baseballs.

Could it be that some "dead balls," famous in grand pappy's day, have found their way into the usual batch of "rabbit" balls?

Warren Spahn and Ernie Johnson of the Boston Braves are the latest pitchers to lend support to the hitter's belief.

Spahn and Johnson teamed up to pitch the Braves to a 1-0 no-hit victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers at Chattanooga, Tenn., yesterday. The masterpiece, before 9,098 fans, was the third no-hit no-run game of the spring, an unprecedented feat. From 1939 until this season only five no-hitters were pitched in Grapefruit League competition.

Jim Hearn and Monte Kennedy of the New York Giants pitched 1952's first no-hitter, beating the Chicago Cubs, 10-0, on March 17.

Rookie righthander Steve Ridzik of the Philadelphia Phillies pitched the second gem, downing the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-0, last Friday.

Spahn toiled the first seven innings and allowed only one Dodger, Roy Campanella, who walked in the fifth, to get on base. Dick Williams, through an error, was the only Brook to reach base during Johnson's two innings.

Roe Pitches

Preacher Roe, veteran Dodger lefthander, was almost as good. He blanked the Braves on six hits until the ninth when Willard Marshall homered with two out to win the game.

The crowd booed when Spahn was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. But Manager Tommy Holmes explained later:

"Spahn has gone nine before. I know he's ready, and I wanted to get a look at this other kid. He's been bothered by a sore arm and hasn't pitched much."

Heavy hitting featured the majority of the other games.

Service-bound Ted Williams and Walt Dropo socked a pair of homers apiece to lead the Boston Red Sox to an 8-4 triumph over Oklahoma City of the Texas League at Oklahoma City.

The Pittsburgh Pirates pounded out 15 hits including home runs by Ted Beard and Ralph Kiner to bury the Chicago Cubs, 13-1, at New Orleans. Howie Pollet limited the Cubs to two hits over the first six innings.

Cliff Fannin, supported by the St. Louis Browns' 17-hit attack, had no trouble turning back the San Antonio Missions of the Texas League, 18-5, in the Alamo city.

Jim Busby pounded out a two-run homer and Chico Carrasquel one with the bases empty to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 4-1 decision over Fort Worth of the Texas League in Fort Worth.

Outfielder Vic Wertz drove in three runs on a pair of homers to spark the Detroit Tigers to a 5-4 victory over Birmingham of the Southern Association.

Home runs highlighted the Philadelphia Phils' 9-8 triumph over the Cardinals at Columbia, S. C. Del Ennis and Forrest Burgess connected for the Phils and Solly Hemus, Enos Slaughter and Peanuts Lowrey for the Cards.

In other games, Cleveland trounced the Giants, 9-4; the Yankees nipped Atlanta, 5-4; the Cincinnati Reds edged Washington, 3-2, at Charlotte, N. C., and the Philadelphia Athletics and Baltimore Orioles battled to a 4-4, ten-inning tie at Baltimore.

Buffalo Women Lead Tourney

Jamestown, N. Y., April 7 (AP) — The girls from Buffalo dominated weekend play here in the New York State women's bowling tournament.

Ethel Vogelsang, veteran Buffalo kegler, took top spot in the all events competition with a formidable 1,686, showing the way to two other Queen City gals, Betty Maw, with 1,640, and Mickey Moran, 1,593.

Miss Vogelsang continued to blister the alleys in the singles as she toppled 604 pins and later teamed with Miss Moran for third place in the Class A doubles with 1,089.

Betty Maw and Mary Quinn, also of Buffalo, socked the maples for a 1,146 total to waltz off with top honors in the Class A doubles event. Betty contributed a sparkling 245—the highest single game rolled in the tourney.

The Cervi Construction team racked up 2,492 for first in the Class A teams to further Buffalo's leading role in the matches.

Training Camp News in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

San Antonio, Tex., April 7 (AP)—When outfielder Willie Mays goes into the armed forces, which should be shortly, New York Giant Manager Leo Durocher plans to recall first baseman Tookie Gilbert from Oakland of the Pacific Coast League.

Gilbert would take over first base duties for the National League champions, thus relieving Whitey Lockman for leftfield chores. The New Yorkers dropped a 9-4 decision to Cleveland yesterday.

Lynchburg, Va., April 7 (AP)—Pee Wee Reese, captain and shortstop of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is nursing a swollen left ring finger. He injured the finger diving back into second base at Nashville, Tenn., Saturday.

Warren Spahn and Ernie Johnson combined yesterday to toss a no-hitter at the Dodgers to win, 1-0.

Columbus, Ga., April 7 (AP)—Rookie lefthander Harry Schaeffer's consecutive scoreless inning streak for the New York Yankees was halted at 13 yesterday by the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association.

Schaeffer pitched the first seven innings in the game won by the Yankees, 5-4. He was tagged for three runs including a pair of tremendous homers by outfielder Bob Montag.

Roanoke, Va., April 7 (AP)—Pitcher Conrado Marrero is tabbed to start for Washington here today against the Senators' barnstorming sidekicks, the Cincinnati Reds.

The Reds beat the Senators at Charlotte, N. C., yesterday. It was righthander Herman Wehmeier's third victory over Washington, making it 22 innings in which he has given the Senators only 11 hits.

Snead Wins Masters With Record Low 286

Augusta, Ga., April 7 (AP) — It could be that Sam Snead didn't win the 1952 Masters golf tournament but that four others lost it.

That's what a lot of folks were saying as they left the Augusta National course late yesterday after Snead hung up a mediocre 286 and not another golfer could get close to it.

His final round was a par 72—modest for such a man as Snead.

That 286 was the worst four rounds of victorious golf ever shot in a Masters' but still it was good enough to give the mountaineer from West Virginia a four-stroke margin over Jack Burke, Jr.

Burke played the finest golf of the wintry, windy day in shooting a 69—three under par on the 6,950-yard National—for 290.

Behind Burke came Jim Ferrier, Tommy Bolt and Al Besselink with 291 and then Lloyd Mangrum with 292.

Before the final round opened five men had chances to win—Snead, Ben Hogan, Besselink, Bolt and Middlecoff. With a chance at one of golf's greatest titles the five went out to make their bid.

Tommy Bolt was first up among those ranking the lowest but he blew his chances completely. The man called "Thunder" because of a roaring temper dropped into a tie for third with an inglorious 74 for a 291 total.

Hogan Blows Up

Then Cary Middlecoff went out and down went his challenge on a miserable (for a golfer like Middlecoff) 78.

Al Besselink had a chance to win, especially when Snead faltered on the front nine. But the big, confident kid faltered also. His final 74 gave him a 291.

Finally, there was Ben Hogan, the guy who just doesn't blow up. But yesterday Ben blew as he hasn't blown in years—a 79 for a 293 and a tie with three others for seventh.

Yesterday's victory in the Masters before a crowd of between 15,000 and 20,000 represents only the second time Snead has won with Hogan in the field in a major or unusually large tournament in over two years. He defeated Hogan in the playoff for the Los Angeles Open in 1950.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The pre-tournament banquet and colorful opening night ceremonies staged in conjunction with the 27th annual New York State bowling championships here Wednesday were eye-openers for the state association bigwigs.

Such sophisticated veterans of bowling pageantry and ceremony like state president Sam P. Doyle of Geneva and state secretary George A. Obenauer were completely overwhelmed by the pomp and cremony of the Kingston opener.

Abenauer, who has been affiliated with the state association since 1926, said: "I've never witnessed anything like this Kingston opening. You folks did a magnificent job."

And so they did, Addison Jones, Joe Magnino and other members of the State Tournament Committee and the KBA. It was a superb job of salesmanship and public relations for the City of Kingston.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Steve Iko, the Rhinebeck midget car promoter, phones in to say he is quitting the Dutchess track this season for a new business venture. Although refusing to be quoted, Steve gave the impression that "too many cooks" spoiled the midget broth across the river. One year after it was organized the Kingston Archery Club is moving along at a nice pace. They celebrate their first anniversary on April 12. The club has purchased four large targets for the shoots at the Kingston-Ulster Airport. President Bill Crosby, who claims archery is one of the fastest growing sports in the country for target, field and hunting, plans future tournaments with various clubs throughout the state: A membership campaign is under way and the club would like to hear from all aspiring Howard Hills. From down Savannah, Ga., way, Brother Bo Gil quotes Dashin' Dick Tyler of North Carolina State as saying Ronnie Scheffel, ex-KHS wizard, will break into the Wolfpack varsity lineup next season. Tyler told Gill that Scheffel was doing well in his first year at the southern basketball foundry.

Coach Frank McGuire of St. John's College, who addresses the Church League banquet here Tuesday, is no stranger to Kingston. He spent a good part of his youth in the Wibur section of the city.

• Of Men and Mice:

A. G. Woolsey, a 50-year veteran of bowling who says he was a pinboy at Pat Roman's alleys on Wall street (across from the court house) before the turn of the century, has entered a bowling team from Poughkeepsie in the state tournament. Woolsey's squads have been winners in the Journal-American, Poughkeepsie City Association and New York State tournaments in the past. The squad is scheduled on April 22 at 7 p. m. Faye Horne's rousing 167 average in the Purple Division of the Colonial Women's League was a surprise. Regina's of the Colonial Women's League set all those records last week without Janet Hines' big triple. Just wanted to keep the record straight. Paul Freer has his tickets for Yankee-Washington opener at Yankee Stadium on April 16. "Couldn't miss the Joe D. ceremonies," says the Cuneo barkeep. A New York beer concern will again present individualy engraved awards to the New York state bowlers rolling the highest scores in each division of the ABC tournament at Milwaukee. A nationally known brewery is putting up $10,000 and a new automobile to the ABC prize list. And all ABC bowlers will get free beer, food and entertainment at the Milwaukee breweries for the duration of the ABC.

A Casey Classic: There was something independent in the Casey Stengel attitude which John J. McGraw, the dictator, could never quite stand. The Giant martinet admired Casey's brains and talent, but as an employe, Stengel drove him nuts.

John J. used to assign detectives to keep check on his most unreliable athletes, Casey among them, of course. One copper would follow Stengel and Irish Meusel, who palled together regularly—until they spotted the sleuth.

The next night, Meusel went one direction and Stengel another. McGraw received a prompt report. He accosted Casey the next day.

"Why didn't you go out with Meusel last night like you usually do?" McGraw demanded.

"Listen," Casey said, indignantly, "if you want me followed, you'll have to get me a detective of my own. I ain't gonna save this club no more dough doubling up!"

Hinnershitz Wins

Reading, Pa., April 7 (AP)—Tommy Hinnershitz is off and running ahead of the field in his bid for his fourth straight Eastern AAA big car auto racing championship. Hinnershitz celebrated his 40th birthday at the half mile Reading Fairgrounds yesterday by winning the season's inaugural triple-A big car race before a crowd of 15,123 in 10:21.91.

Curved Beak

The sickle-billed hummingbird, of South America, has a curved beak that enables it to feed on flowers whose calyxes are upright.

Five Teams Ready; Joe Messinger Slated to Retire

Second Meeting Set For Thursday Night

The City Baseball League will operate with six teams this season, the league officials decided at their first organizational meeting of the season.

Five holdover franchises are ready to go, with the sixth member to be either Old Capital Motors of the 1951 setup or Bigando's Market of Kingston.

The holdover teams are Chez Emile, Boulevard Gulf, Morgan's Merchants, Wiltwyck Motors and Jones Dairy.

Another meeting has been scheduled for Thursday at the city court room in city hall. Secretary Joe Messinger, who did a terrific job as secretary last year, has announced that he will not be available this season due to a change in working hours.

The league will also receive applications for the positions of umpires and groundkeeper.

The playing nights will not be determined until the next meeting.

No election of top officers is necessary this season as the present slate holds over. Joe Kelly is president, and Charles "Jimmy" Turck, vice-president.

Just Shows What A Little Control Can Do for You

Philadelphia — (NEA) — Bud Parmalee might have become one of baseball's greatest pitchers if the strike zone hadn't been such a mystery to him.

Tarzan Parmalee was as wild as moundsmen get.

After a hectic fling in the National League and American Association, he was salvaged by Connie Mack. Bud still couldn't find the plate, and the erstwhile Athletics manager sent him to Louisville.

Mr. Mack received a letter from the problem pitcher a week later. A Louisville box score was enclosed.

Parmalee had walked a dozen batters, hit a couple more, fired two wild pitches, but managed to win, 10-9.

"Just goes to show you," wrote Parmalee, "what a guy can do when he acquires control."

Lakers Wrap Up Western Series

Minneapolis, April 7 (AP)—The Minneapolis Lakers, winners of the Western Division playoff, enjoyed a respite from basketball today before heading into the final playoff in the National Basketball Association race today.

The Lakers turned back the hard-driving Rochester Royals, 82-80, last night to end the Western Division playoff. Jim Pollard's tip-in of the ball after big George Mikan had missed a shot came with but two seconds of the game left. The Lakers had maneuvered for better than two minutes with the score tied at 80-80 before they could set up the shot for Mikan.

The opponent for the Lakers won't be known until the New York Knickerbockers and Syracuse wind up the eastern playoff. New York leads that series, 2-1, after a 99-92 victory Saturday night in a game marked by a riot in the waning seconds. This series will resume tomorrow night in New York.

The victory was worth $3,250 to the Lakers, who captured the best-of-five series in three straight games after losing the first tilt to the Royals.

Bob Davis, ace Royal guard, tipped in 21 points in last night's finale after being held scoreless in the Saturday night game, won by the Lakers, 77-67. Pep Saul and Vern Mikkelsen led the Laker scoring last night with 18 points apiece. Mikan wound up with 16.

Third No-Hitter Stirs Suspicion Rabbit Has Departed From Ball

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Major league hitters are beginning to suspect that some one is sabotaging the official league baseballs.

Could it be that some "dead balls," famous in grand pappy's day, have found their way into the usual batch of "rabbit" balls?

Warren Spahn and Ernie Johnson of the Boston Braves are the latest pitchers to lend support to the hitter's belief.

Spahn and Johnson teamed up to pitch the Braves to a 1-0 no-hit victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers at Chattanooga, Tenn., yesterday. The masterpiece, before 9,098 fans, was the third no-hit no-run game of the spring, an unprecedented feat. From 1939 until this season only five no-hitters were pitched in Grapefruit League competition.

Jim Hearn and Monte Kennedy of the New York Giants pitched 1952's first no-hitter, beating the Chicago Cubs, 10-0, on March 17.

Rookie righthander Steve Ridzik of the Philadelphia Phillies pitched the second gem, downing the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-0, last Friday.

Spahn toiled the first seven innings and allowed only one Dodger, Roy Campanella, who walked in the fifth, to get on base. Dick Williams, through an error, was the only Brook to reach base during Johnson's two innings.

Roe Pitches

Preacher Roe, veteran Dodger lefthander, was almost as good. He blanked the Braves on six hits until the ninth when Willard Marshall homered with two out to win the game.

The crowd booed when Spahn was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. But Manager Tommy Holmes explained later:

"Spahn has gone nine before. I know he's ready, and I wanted to get a look at this other kid. He's been bothered by a sore arm and hasn't pitched much."

Heavy hitting featured the majority of the other games.

Service-bound Ted Williams and Walt Dropo socked a pair of homers apiece to lead the Boston Red Sox to an 8-4 triumph over Oklahoma City of the Texas League at Oklahoma City.

The Pittsburgh Pirates pounded out 15 hits including home runs by Ted Beard and Ralph Kiner to bury the Chicago Cubs, 13-1, at New Orleans. Howie Pollet limited the Cubs to two hits over the first six innings.

Cliff Fannin, supported by the St. Louis Browns' 17-hit attack, had no trouble turning back the San Antonio Missions of the Texas League, 18-5, in the Alamo city.

Jim Busby pounded out a two-run homer and Chico Carrasquel one with the bases empty to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 4-1 decision over Fort Worth of the Texas League in Fort Worth.

Outfielder Vic Wertz drove in three runs on a pair of homers to spark the Detroit Tigers to a 5-4 victory over Birmingham of the Southern Association.

Home runs highlighted the Philadelphia Phils' 9-8 triumph over the Cardinals at Columbia, S. C. Del Ennis and Forrest Burgess connected for the Phils and Solly Hemus, Enos Slaughter and Peanuts Lowrey for the Cards.

In other games, Cleveland trounced the Giants, 9-4; the Yankees nipped Atlanta, 5-4; the Cincinnati Reds edged Washington, 3-2, at Charlotte, N. C., and the Philadelphia Athletics and Baltimore Orioles battled to a 4-4, ten-inning tie at Baltimore.

Buffalo Women Lead Tourney

Jamestown, N. Y., April 7 (AP) — The girls from Buffalo dominated weekend play here in the New York State women's bowling tournament.

Ethel Vogelsang, veteran Buffalo kegler, took top spot in the all events competition with a formidable 1,686, showing the way to two other Queen City gals, Betty Maw, with 1,640, and Mickey Moran, 1,593.

Miss Vogelsang continued to blister the alleys in the singles as she toppled 604 pins and later teamed with Miss Moran for third place in the Class A doubles with 1,089.

Betty Maw and Mary Quinn, also of Buffalo, socked the maples for a 1,146 total to waltz off with top honors in the Class A doubles event. Betty contributed a sparkling 245—the highest single game rolled in the tourney.

The Cervi Construction team racked up 2,492 for first in the Class A teams to further Buffalo's leading role in the matches.

Training Camp News in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

San Antonio, Tex., April 7 (AP)—When outfielder Willie Mays goes into the armed forces, which should be shortly, New York Giant Manager Leo Durocher plans to recall first baseman Tookie Gilbert from Oakland of the Pacific Coast League.

Gilbert would take over first base duties for the National League champions, thus relieving Whitey Lockman for leftfield chores. The New Yorkers dropped a 9-4 decision to Cleveland yesterday.

Lynchburg, Va., April 7 (AP)—Pee Wee Reese, captain and shortstop of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is nursing a swollen left ring finger. He injured the finger diving back into second base at Nashville, Tenn., Saturday.

Warren Spahn and Ernie Johnson combined yesterday to toss a no-hitter at the Dodgers to win, 1-0.

Columbus, Ga., April 7 (AP)—Rookie lefthander Harry Schaeffer's consecutive scoreless inning streak for the New York Yankees was halted at 13 yesterday by the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association.

Schaeffer pitched the first seven innings in the game won by the Yankees, 5-4. He was tagged for three runs including a pair of tremendous homers by outfielder Bob Montag.

Roanoke, Va., April 7 (AP)—Pitcher Conrado Marrero is tabbed to start for Washington here today against the Senators' barnstorming sidekicks, the Cincinnati Reds.

The Reds beat the Senators at Charlotte, N. C., yesterday. It was righthander Herman Wehmeier's third victory over Washington, making it 22 innings in which he has given the Senators only 11 hits.

Snead Wins Masters With Record Low 286

Augusta, Ga., April 7 (AP) — It could be that Sam Snead didn't win the 1952 Masters golf tournament but that four others lost it.

That's what a lot of folks were saying as they left the Augusta National course late yesterday after Snead hung up a mediocre 286 and not another golfer could get close to it.

His final round was a par 72—modest for such a man as Snead.

That 286 was the worst four rounds of victorious golf ever shot in a Masters' but still it was good enough to give the mountaineer from West Virginia a four-stroke margin over Jack Burke, Jr.

Burke played the finest golf of the wintry, windy day in shooting a 69—three under par on the 6,950-yard National—for 290.

Behind Burke came Jim Ferrier, Tommy Bolt and Al Besselink with 291 and then Lloyd Mangrum with 292.

Before the final round opened five men had chances to win—Snead, Ben Hogan, Besselink, Bolt and Middlecoff. With a chance at one of golf's greatest titles the five went out to make their bid.

Tommy Bolt was first up among those ranking the lowest but he blew his chances completely. The man called "Thunder" because of a roaring temper dropped into a tie for third with an inglorious 74 for a 291 total.

Hogan Blows Up

Then Cary Middlecoff went out and down went his challenge on a miserable (for a golfer like Middlecoff) 78.

Al Besselink had a chance to win, especially when Snead faltered on the front nine. But the big, confident kid faltered also. His final 74 gave him a 291.

Finally, there was Ben Hogan, the guy who just doesn't blow up. But yesterday Ben blew as he hasn't blown in years—a 79 for a 293 and a tie with three others for seventh.

Yesterday's victory in the Masters before a crowd of between 15,000 and 20,000 represents only the second time Snead has won with Hogan in the field in a major or unusually large tournament in over two years. He defeated Hogan in the playoff for the Los Angeles Open in 1950.

The pre-tournament banquet and colorful opening night ceremonies staged in conjunction with the 27th annual New York State bowling championships here Wednesday were eye-openers for the state association bigwigs.

Such sophisticated veterans of bowling pageantry and ceremony like state president Sam P. Doyle of Geneva and state secretary George A. Obenauer were completely overwhelmed by the pomp and cremony of the Kingston opener.

Abenauer, who has been affiliated with the state association since 1926, said: "I've never witnessed anything like this Kingston opening. You folks did a magnificent job."

And so they did, Addison Jones, Joe Magnino and other members of the State Tournament Committee and the KBA. It was a superb job of salesmanship and public relations for the City of Kingston.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Steve Iko, the Rhinebeck midget car promoter, phones in to say he is quitting the Dutchess track this season for a new business venture. Although refusing to be quoted, Steve gave the impression that "too many cooks" spoiled the midget broth across the river. One year after it was organized the Kingston Archery Club is moving along at a nice pace. They celebrate their first anniversary on April 12. The club has purchased four large targets for the shoots at the Kingston-Ulster Airport. President Bill Crosby, who claims archery is one of the fastest growing sports in the country for target, field and hunting, plans future tournaments with various clubs throughout the state. A membership campaign is under way and the club would like to hear from all aspiring Howard Hills. From down Savannah, Ga., way, Brother Bo Gil quotes Dashin' Dick Tyler of North Carolina State as saying Ronnie Scheffel, ex-KHS wizard, will break into the Wolfpack varsity lineup next season. Tyler told Gil that Scheffel was doing well in his first year at the southern basketball foundry.

Coach Frank McGuire of St. John's College, who addresses the Church League banquet here Tuesday, is no stranger to Kingston. He spent a good part of his youth in the Wibur section of the city.

• Of Men and Mice:

A. G. Woolsey, a 50-year veteran of bowling who says he was a pinboy at Pat Roman's alleys on Wall street (across from the court house) before the turn of the century, has entered a bowling team from Poughkeepsie in the state tournament. Woolsey's squads have been winners in the Journal-American, Poughkeepsie City Association and New York State tournaments in the past. The squad is scheduled on April 22 at 7 p. m. Faye Horne's rousing 167 average in the Purple Division of the Colonial Women's League was a surprise. Regina's of the Colonial Women's League set all those records last week without Janet Hines' big triple. Just wanted to keep the record straight. Paul Freer has his tickets for Yankee-Washington opener at Yankee Stadium on April 16. "Couldn't miss the Joe D. ceremonies," says the Cuneo barkeep. A New York beer concern will again present individualy engraved awards to the New York state bowlers rolling the highest scores in each division of the ABC tournament at Milwaukee. A nationally known brewery is putting up $10,000 and a new automobile to the ABC prize list. And all ABC bowlers will get free beer, food and entertainment at the Milwaukee breweries for the duration of the ABC.

A Casey Classic: There was something independent in the Casey Stengel attitude which John J. McGraw, the dictator, could never quite stand. The Giant martinet admired Casey's brains and talent, but as an employe, Stengel drove him nuts.

John J. used to assign detectives to keep check on his most unreliable athletes, Casey among them, of course. One copper would follow Stengel and Irish Meusel, who palled together regularly—until they spotted the sleuth.

The next night, Meusel went one direction and Stengel another. McGraw received a prompt report. He accosted Casey the next day.

"Why didn't you go out with Meusel last night like you usually do?" McGraw demanded.

"Listen," Casey said, indignantly, "if you want me followed, you'll have to get me a detective of my own. I ain't gonna save this club no more dough doubling up!"

Hinnershitz Wins

Reading, Pa., April 7 (AP)—Tommy Hinnershitz is off and running ahead of the field in his bid for his fourth straight Eastern AAA big car auto racing championship. Hinnershitz celebrated his 40th birthday at the half mile Reading Fairgrounds yesterday by winning the season's inaugural triple-A big car race before a crowd of 15,123 in 10:21.91.

Five Teams Ready; Joe Messinger Slated to Retire

Second Meeting Set For Thursday Night

The City Baseball League will operate with six teams this season, the league officials decided at their first organizational meeting of the season.

Five holdover franchises are ready to go, with the sixth member to be either Old Capital Motors of the 1951 setup or Bigando's Market of Kingston.

The holdover teams are Chez Emile, Boulevard Gulf, Morgan's Merchants, Wiltwyck Motors and Jones Dairy.

Another meeting has been scheduled for Thursday at the city court room in city hall. Secretary Joe Messinger, who did a terrific job as secretary last year, has announced that he will not be available this season due to a change in working hours.

The league will also receive applications for the positions of umpires and groundkeeper.

The playing nights will not be determined until the next meeting.

No election of top officers is necessary this season as the present slate holds over. Joe Kelly is president, and Charles "Jimmy" Turck, vice-president.

Middletown, Poughkeepsie Keglers Star in Tourney

A Poughkeepsie tandem leads the gross doubles division and Paul Rahn of Utica is the all-events leader of the state bowling tournament but intensive weekend action failed to dislodge Kingston teams from the leading in the team shooting.

Fromer's Petroleum's 3249 gross and 3105 net were not even remotely challenged by 12 team squads, but the individual and doubles shooting produced some spectacular counts.

Rahn took over the all-events lead with a gross score of 1956 on 567 in the team, 628 in doubles. 626 in singles and a 135 handicap.

Jack Swift and Robert Robbins of Poughkeepsie posted 1363 in the gross doubles, Swift hitting 685 and Robbins 678. In second place are Walter Clark and Robert Kogle of Batavia with 1347.

tournament last night, hitting 288 in booster team competition.

Bowen, a 33-year-old kegler with a 170 average, began with a spare, tossed in 10 strikes in a row and then left the 4-7 standing on his final ball.

Fred Henry, 51-year-old grinding machine tender from Herkimer, N. Y., put together games of 279, 210 and 233 for a 712, high for the meet in the regular team division.

There were no changes among the top regular teams.

Andy Varipapa, former national match game champion, turned in a 680 doubles series on 222, 233 and 225 in carrying partner Herb Case, Detroit, into ninth place with 1,250. Case had 199, 166 and 205 for 570. But Varipapa faded in the singles with 161, 152 and 194 for 507.

Rudy Fassl and Jack Frisbie, Cincinnati, O., had the best doubles series of the day with 1,252 good for eighth place. Lawrence Knueven and Harvey Cowkill of Columbus, O., had 1,245 for tenth.

There is a school for training African elephants in the Belgian Congo.

Socks 724 Gross

Austin Wynkoop of Middletown socked a 724 gross singles. He had 670 net, plus handicap and reeled off a "290" score in his third game of the singles. After a 10-pin tap in the first frame he reeled off 11 strikes in a row.

Hank Kuykendall, the Ellenville ace, powered 690 in the doubles and 654, with 245-186-223, in the net singles.

Nick Svercheck of New York city rolled into second pace in the gross singles with 704 on scores of 236-223-236—695 plus a 9 handicap. The 695 leads the net singles.

W. Clarke and R. Kogle of Batavia are in front in the net doubles with 1248, followed by Al Milliot and Hank Kuykendall of Ellenville with 1235.

Best weekend score in the team shooting was the 3103 posted by the Nationals of Ithaca Saturday night. That moved them into fifth place behind Wiltwyck Motors of Kingston.

The doubles standings were scrambled around last night, with T. Bortle and D. Cassidy of Oneida rolling 3141 for third place and John Aquillino and Joseph Caruso, a New York tandem, hitting 3104 for fourth place. No Kingston squads are in the first ten.

There will be no tournament activity until Wednesday night. Hotshot New York city major league teams are due this weekend.

Catskill Males Trip Trailways

The Adirondack Trailway keglerettes defeated the Hallenbeck Jewels of Catskill so badly in their first meeting this season, that the Greene county ladies recruited a couple of Catskill's leading male hotshots for the return clash Saturday night at the Catskill Bowling Center.

Bill Guldenstern, the match game shooter, and Joe Ferraro sparked the Catskill mixed squad with 551 and 576 in a 2606 effort.

Rose Schatzel's 203—527 paced the Trailways.

Try to Link Gun With Schuster Death

New York, April 7 (AP)—A pistol found in a Brooklyn parking lot early today gave new impetus to the investigation of the killing of Arnold Schuster, 24, whose tip led to the arrest of bank robber Willie (the actor) Sutton.

Police were attempting to link the revolver, a .38 with three discharged shells in its cylinder, with the slaying. The weapon was found only about five blocks from Schuster's home, near which the Brooklyn salesman was shot own March 8.

Within a short time police brought in a longshoreman for questioning. He had been in the station only a short time when groups of detectives left, returning with three other men.

Chief Inspector Conrad Rothengast confirmed the finding of the weapon, but said it had not been linked definitely with the Schuster killing. Rofithengast said the revolver was believed to have been stolen from a Brooklyn pier and was part of a shipment bound for Japan.

Noted Folklorist Back From Tour Of Latin America

Woodstock, April 7—More expressive than speech, more universal than language, music has been a mode of communication between people since time immemorial. Drums have beat through the jungles, and songs have echoed throughout the mountains of all lands. But more often than not, the songs and rhythms have been lost in silence as generations dwindled. That, however, was before the time of Sam Eskin, folk singer and folklorist, who has been described by Harold Maine, author of "If a Man Be Mad," as a "migrant folk song collector in his own time."

Eskin has just returned to his home, the converted sheep barn on the former Cannon ranch property, after a winter's scouting tour of Mexico and South America, in search of folk music. Talking with Eskin, his listeners are inclined to forget that he is himself one of the first folk singers in this country, so engrossed is he in the entire subject of folk music and of the many recordings he has made of folk songs in this country. In addition to singing for his own recordings, he is engaged in adding to the material on, and recordings of folk music deposited in the Library of Congress.

Uses Unique 'Horn'

"Heretofore," Eskin said, "I've been specializing in the area of Anglo-Saxon music, but this winter I went to Mexico and South America to move into another area in the field."

When a visitor first enters Eskin's home, he is impressed with the spacious comfort of the large living room, musical instruments on the walls, the tape recording apparatus and giant 16-inch record turn-table flanking one side of the fireplace. But it requires a second startled look to take in the 10-foot-long "horn" which amplifies the recordings, as unique a piece of equipment ever to be found anywhere. Contrived of plywood, it is built into the floor, flares at the opening to about eight feet in width and is about waist high.

The "horn" came about as the result of a visit some time ago of his friend, Emory G. Cook, one of the foremost electronics engineers in the country, of Cook Laboratories, Pound Ridge. In the course of a conversation on sound, Cook described what he believed would be the best arrangement for the perfect reproduction of sound. Accoustically, he said, the floor has been known as the best place from which to project sound. Somewhat jestingly, Cook suggested that Sam build the ideal horn.

Reproduction Is Miraculous

"So I built it," stated Eskin modestly. "No one had ever had the courage to build one, I guess, nor did anyone in this business have a barn to build it in.'

When Cook returned to Woodstock he was impressed. He set up the electrical equipment which involved two bass speakers inside the horn, two intermediate speakers placed on each side above the horn and atop them a battery of treble speakers for the highest notes. The result is the miraculous life-like reproduction of any sound, and at times the effect is nothing short of house-shaking. If, in an impish moment, Eskin should ever decide to turn the controls up to the highest volume, and at the same time play his recording of railroad trains passing through the Peekskill station, neighbors would be justified in thinking that the night express had detoured across Overlook Mountain. Visitors instinctively dash for the side walls when the clatter of wheels, shriek of brakes and hoot of whistles emanate from the horn and the floor vibrates with disconcerting resemblance to the platform of the station.

Records Steel Band

Comparatively quieter, but fascinating beyond description is Eskin's newest recording, acquired this winter during his stop-over in Trinidad, the island usually associated with Calypso music. Eskin had heard of something new and distinctly unusual to be found there—the "steel band," which he at first thought might have some relation to the steel guitar. Upon investigation, however, he learned that the band is composed of a series of steel drums, cut at varying heights to obtain the different notes. The drums are tuned to the same pitch with little sections hammered out, so that only the hammered part sounds, and when struck the other parts remain silent. The recording Eskin played by the steel band, is a terrific study in rhythms, subtle and continually changing, and surprisingly, containing a melody.

"It's very new," said Eskin, "and how it evolved no one knows. But I'm going back next winter to make a further study of it. The natives dance to it, but it is definitely not primitive."

Enthusiastic About Mexico

From Trinidad Eskin went to Caracas, Venezuela; Belem at the mouth of the Amazon river, Brazil; and landed in Rio de Janiero one day ahead of the carnival.

"Everyone participates in the three-day affair," he recalled. "The streets are closed to traffic and there is a continuous beating of drums, singing and dancing. There was nothing new, however, to be found there as the samba is the basic dance rhythm."

Eskin was exceedingly enthusiastic about Mexico which he found to be "emotionally exciting," and he hopes to visit remote Indian villages there next year. In the town of Jiquilpan in the mountains near Lake Chapalla, he met through a fortunate incident, Jesus Flores, librarian of the building which contains the famed Oresco murals. He invited Eskin to stay on for a month, and when he returns next year, Flores intends to line up the best singers and music in the area for Eskin to record.

The recording equipment itself, was demonstrated by Cook, who again spent the weekend at Eskin's. When Eskin travels to a remote village he will not have to worry about finding the nearest electric plug. It will all be contained in his car, a complete unit designed by Cook, composed of the power plant, a compact series of motors, the tape recorders and a control panel.

With extensive plans in the making for next winter's work, in Mexico, Trinidad and Haiti, where he hopes to study the Africo-Cuban music, Eskin is equally as keen on discovering and recording the music to be found in this area. He would appreciate hearing from anyone who has learned old songs that may have come down through a family or group, or folktales of this countryside.

"I know of no man who is so little befouled or befuddled by modern life as Sam Eskin," Harold Maine also wrote. Perhaps Eskin's compromise between the present and the past is owing to his enviable task of recording the folk music of the past for the enjoyment of future generations.

Art Notes

Woodstock, April 7—At the annual get-together and dinner meeting of the American Artists Professional League, March 8, at the National Arts Club, New York, a number of awards were presented in celebration of American Art Week, last November, for outstanding achievements. From the Canal Zone, Director B. Sturtevant Gardner's Record Book competed in group E and was awarded Mary Eula Sear's etching, Ancient Grill Work, gift of Texas' director, A. M. Carpenter. Gardner is a summer resident of this village, at his home on Mead Mountain Road.

Marion Greenwood's prize-winning painting, Lament, which was awarded the $1,200 Benjamin Altman figure prize at the 127th Annual of the National Academy of Design, has been reproduced in a number of publications, in the art section of the New York Herald Tribune last week, and in the April 1 issue of the Art Digest.

Other Woodstock artists whose work is included in the exhibition are Eugene Speicher, Leon Kroll and Henry Mattson.

Paintings from the collection of Sidney Berkowitz are included in an exhibition of 60 contemporary paintings which opened Sunday at the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts. The exhibition, composed of paintings from the private collections of prominent Americans all over the country—oilmen, merchants, doctors, lawyers and manufacturers and one United States senator—demonstrates that today's business and professional successes prefer today's art. One of the requirements for inclusion in this show was that the lender be a confirmed collector—not a beginner. A painting by Woodstock painter, Milton Avery, is included in the exhibition.

A painting, Mr. Ace, by Yasuo Kuniyoshi, on view at the Downtown Gallery, New York, was reproduced in the art section of the New York Herald Tribune, Sunday. The picture is included in the "Spring 1952" show of work by 25 artists. Carlyle Burrows, art critic made special comment on the painting describing it as "interesting and dramatic in mood, and brightly effective."

Burrows, in the same column describes the current exhibition of paintings by Fletcher Martin at the Associated American Artists gallery as "an artist whose style has always been realistic though vigorously contemporary. Action and illustration have gone hand in hand with work often decorously simple and serene. The western scenes of a hard-hitting pictorialist have been replaced a little by the graces of the studio figure characterization, the nicely considered still life and landscape. But like so many painters, Martin has grown more interested in the abstract process. In shaping his view he does not go all the way, but it is enough to indicate considerable development."

Fitzpatrick Pleads For Legislative Control

New York, April 7 (AP)—Democratic State Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick says the Legislature's recent session was "one of the worst failures of the 10-year reign of the Dewey machine in Albany."

Fitzpatrick urges the state's 62 Democratic county chairmen to "bring this year's legislative session home to the people" in action designed to get "a Democratic legislature for 1953."

The criticism of the legislative record was in a report to the Democratic chairmen, released yesterday.

Assailing the administration of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and the state's new budget, Fitzpatrick declared:

"Nowhere in this monstrous budget will you find provision for the Democratic proposals which would have meant a richer, fuller life for farmers, working people, the aged, employed mothers, and the young of the state.

"These measures were all shunted aside in favor of partisan political considerations for the Republican party and their favored special interests."

Try to Link Gun With Schuster Death

New York, April 7 (AP)—A pistol found in a Brooklyn parking lot early today gave new impetus to the investigation of the killing of Arnold Schuster, 24, whose tip led to the arrest of bank robber Willie (the actor) Sutton.

Police were attempting to link the revolver, a .38 with three discharged shells in its cylinder, with the slaying. The weapon was found only about five blocks from Schuster's home, near which the Brooklyn salesman was shot own March 8.

Within a short time police brought in a longshoreman for questioning. He had been in the station only a short time when groups of detectives left, returning with three other men.

Chief Inspector Conrad Rothengast confirmed the finding of the weapon, but said it had not been linked definitely with the Schuster killing. Rofithengast said the revolver was believed to have been stolen from a Brooklyn pier and was part of a shipment bound for Japan.

Noted Folklorist Back From Tour Of Latin America

Woodstock, April 7—More expressive than speech, more universal than language, music has been a mode of communication between people since time immemorial. Drums have beat through the jungles, and songs have echoed throughout the mountains of all lands. But more often than not, the songs and rhythms have been lost in silence as generations dwindled. That, however, was before the time of Sam Eskin, folk singer and folklorist, who has been described by Harold Maine, author of "If a Man Be Mad," as a "migrant folk song collector in his own time."

Eskin has just returned to his home, the converted sheep barn on the former Cannon ranch property, after a winter's scouting tour of Mexico and South America, in search of folk music. Talking with Eskin, his listeners are inclined to forget that he is himself one of the first folk singers in this country, so engrossed is he in the entire subject of folk music and of the many recordings he has made of folk songs in this country. In addition to singing for his own recordings, he is engaged in adding to the material on, and recordings of folk music deposited in the Library of Congress.

Uses Unique 'Horn'

"Heretofore," Eskin said, "I've been specializing in the area of Anglo-Saxon music, but this winter I went to Mexico and South America to move into another area in the field."

When a visitor first enters Eskin's home, he is impressed with the spacious comfort of the large living room, musical instruments on the walls, the tape recording apparatus and giant 16-inch record turn-table flanking one side of the fireplace. But it requires a second startled look to take in the 10-foot-long "horn" which amplifies the recordings, as unique a piece of equipment ever to be found anywhere. Contrived of plywood, it is built into the floor, flares at the opening to about eight feet in width and is about waist high.

The "horn" came about as the result of a visit some time ago of his friend, Emory G. Cook, one of the foremost electronics engineers in the country, of Cook Laboratories, Pound Ridge. In the course of a conversation on sound, Cook described what he believed would be the best arrangement for the perfect reproduction of sound. Accoustically, he said, the floor has been known as the best place from which to project sound. Somewhat jestingly, Cook suggested that Sam build the ideal horn.

Reproduction Is Miraculous

"So I built it," stated Eskin modestly. "No one had ever had the courage to build one, I guess, nor did anyone in this business have a barn to build it in.'

When Cook returned to Woodstock he was impressed. He set up the electrical equipment which involved two bass speakers inside the horn, two intermediate speakers placed on each side above the horn and atop them a battery of treble speakers for the highest notes. The result is the miraculous life-like reproduction of any sound, and at times the effect is nothing short of house-shaking. If, in an impish moment, Eskin should ever decide to turn the controls up to the highest volume, and at the same time play his recording of railroad trains passing through the Peekskill station, neighbors would be justified in thinking that the night express had detoured across Overlook Mountain. Visitors instinctively dash for the side walls when the clatter of wheels, shriek of brakes and hoot of whistles emanate from the horn and the floor vibrates with disconcerting resemblance to the platform of the station.

Records Steel Band

Comparatively quieter, but fascinating beyond description is Eskin's newest recording, acquired this winter during his stop-over in Trinidad, the island usually associated with Calypso music. Eskin had heard of something new and distinctly unusual to be found there—the "steel band," which he at first thought might have some relation to the steel guitar. Upon investigation, however, he learned that the band is composed of a series of steel drums, cut at varying heights to obtain the different notes. The drums are tuned to the same pitch with little sections hammered out, so that only the hammered part sounds, and when struck the other parts remain silent. The recording Eskin played by the steel band, is a terrific study in rhythms, subtle and continually changing, and surprisingly, containing a melody.

"It's very new," said Eskin, "and how it evolved no one knows. But I'm going back next winter to make a further study of it. The natives dance to it, but it is definitely not primitive."

Enthusiastic About Mexico

From Trinidad Eskin went to Caracas, Venezuela; Belem at the mouth of the Amazon river, Brazil; and landed in Rio de Janiero one day ahead of the carnival.

"Everyone participates in the three-day affair," he recalled. "The streets are closed to traffic and there is a continuous beating of drums, singing and dancing. There was nothing new, however, to be found there as the samba is the basic dance rhythm."

Eskin was exceedingly enthusiastic about Mexico which he found to be "emotionally exciting," and he hopes to visit remote Indian villages there next year. In the town of Jiquilpan in the mountains near Lake Chapalla, he met through a fortunate incident, Jesus Flores, librarian of the building which contains the famed Oresco murals. He invited Eskin to stay on for a month, and when he returns next year, Flores intends to line up the best singers and music in the area for Eskin to record.

The recording equipment itself, was demonstrated by Cook, who again spent the weekend at Eskin's. When Eskin travels to a remote village he will not have to worry about finding the nearest electric plug. It will all be contained in his car, a complete unit designed by Cook, composed of the power plant, a compact series of motors, the tape recorders and a control panel.

With extensive plans in the making for next winter's work, in Mexico, Trinidad and Haiti, where he hopes to study the Africo-Cuban music, Eskin is equally as keen on discovering and recording the music to be found in this area. He would appreciate hearing from anyone who has learned old songs that may have come down through a family or group, or folktales of this countryside.

"I know of no man who is so little befouled or befuddled by modern life as Sam Eskin," Harold Maine also wrote. Perhaps Eskin's compromise between the present and the past is owing to his enviable task of recording the folk music of the past for the enjoyment of future generations.

Art Notes

Woodstock, April 7—At the annual get-together and dinner meeting of the American Artists Professional League, March 8, at the National Arts Club, New York, a number of awards were presented in celebration of American Art Week, last November, for outstanding achievements. From the Canal Zone, Director B. Sturtevant Gardner's Record Book competed in group E and was awarded Mary Eula Sear's etching, Ancient Grill Work, gift of Texas' director, A. M. Carpenter. Gardner is a summer resident of this village, at his home on Mead Mountain Road.

Marion Greenwood's prize-winning painting, Lament, which was awarded the $1,200 Benjamin Altman figure prize at the 127th Annual of the National Academy of Design, has been reproduced in a number of publications, in the art section of the New York Herald Tribune last week, and in the April 1 issue of the Art Digest.

Other Woodstock artists whose work is included in the exhibition are Eugene Speicher, Leon Kroll and Henry Mattson.

Paintings from the collection of Sidney Berkowitz are included in an exhibition of 60 contemporary paintings which opened Sunday at the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts. The exhibition, composed of paintings from the private collections of prominent Americans all over the country—oilmen, merchants, doctors, lawyers and manufacturers and one United States senator—demonstrates that today's business and professional successes prefer today's art. One of the requirements for inclusion in this show was that the lender be a confirmed collector—not a beginner. A painting by Woodstock painter, Milton Avery, is included in the exhibition.

A painting, Mr. Ace, by Yasuo Kuniyoshi, on view at the Downtown Gallery, New York, was reproduced in the art section of the New York Herald Tribune, Sunday. The picture is included in the "Spring 1952" show of work by 25 artists. Carlyle Burrows, art critic made special comment on the painting describing it as "interesting and dramatic in mood, and brightly effective."

Burrows, in the same column describes the current exhibition of paintings by Fletcher Martin at the Associated American Artists gallery as "an artist whose style has always been realistic though vigorously contemporary. Action and illustration have gone hand in hand with work often decorously simple and serene. The western scenes of a hard-hitting pictorialist have been replaced a little by the graces of the studio figure characterization, the nicely considered still life and landscape. But like so many painters, Martin has grown more interested in the abstract process. In shaping his view he does not go all the way, but it is enough to indicate considerable development."

Fitzpatrick Pleads For Legislative Control

New York, April 7 (AP)—Democratic State Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick says the Legislature's recent session was "one of the worst failures of the 10-year reign of the Dewey machine in Albany."

Fitzpatrick urges the state's 62 Democratic county chairmen to "bring this year's legislative session home to the people" in action designed to get "a Democratic legislature for 1953."

The criticism of the legislative record was in a report to the Democratic chairmen, released yesterday.

Assailing the administration of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and the state's new budget, Fitzpatrick declared:

"Nowhere in this monstrous budget will you find provision for the Democratic proposals which would have meant a richer, fuller life for farmers, working people, the aged, employed mothers, and the young of the state.

"These measures were all shunted aside in favor of partisan political considerations for the Republican party and their favored special interests."

Take Sound Advice; Win First Trick

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"Please settle a playing problem for us," requests a Winnipeg reader. "West opened the queen of hearts in the accompanying hand, and South won with the ace.

"South led a spade to dummy's ace, cashed the ace and king of clubs, and laid down the king of spades to discard a club from dummy. Then he led his last club and ruffed in dummy. East overruffed and returned a trump, so South had to lose a spade trick eventually.

"North argues that South should have ruffed a spade in dummy first, having fewer spades than clubs. Then he could take the ace of diamonds, ruff a diamond, and ruff the club in dummy. East could over-ruff, if he liked, but the slam would be safe.

"South claims that the third round of clubs was almost as safe as the third round of spades would have been. He chose the club attempt first because even when disaster struck he still had a chance to drop the jack of spades.

"Who is right?"

If South tries to get two ruffs in dummy, he must guess which black suit will go around three times. The difference between the two is so small (considering South's point about the jack of spades) that the choice could interest only a mathematician.

The best line of play seems to have been overlooked by everybody. South should win the first trick with the ace of hearts, enter dummy with the ace of spades, and return the eight of hearts from dummy.

If East is a first class player, he will cover with the ten of hearts. The odds are very good, however, that East will play a low heart in the miserable hope that South will misguess.

If East does play a low heart, the eight wins the trick. South next gets to his hand with the king of clubs to ruff the ten of spades with dummy's last trump. Now twelve tricks are cold.

Even if East covers the eight of hearts with the ten, South is in good shape. He wins with the jack, leads a trump to dummy's nine, cashes the ace of diamonds and ruffs a diamond in his hand. He then leads out the rest of the trumps and cashes the top spades.

If the jack of spades drops, he is home. Otherwise, the worst he can have is a two-way finesse for the queen of clubs.

McMahon, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, brought this out yesterday in a radio interview (Gannett News Service). But...we can inform you of two important facts.

First, the quality of our merchandise is superior — in many cases better than last year! And secondly, our prices are practically the same as last year! Thus you are really purchasing better quality for the same price—which means that you are receiving a legitimate bargain.

You can prove these facts for yourself — by phoning 5656 and talking over your ROOFING problems with us. Never will we pressure you into a purchase—and always we will guarantee that you receive what you believed you were purchasing.
